A SUICIDE AT PERU

HAD FAMILY TROUBLE.

Her Married Life Proved to be Unhappy and She Decided to End Her Troubles by Committing Suicide.

SHE LEAVES FAMILY OF CHILDREN.

The little village of Peru in Benner township was startled Saturday forenoon when it was learned that Annie Bettleyon had taken arsenic with suicidal intent. The young lady had been keeping house for John Boal at that place in order to make a living for herself and support her three children. The deadly poison began its work soon after she had taken it and despite all efforts to save her life, she died that evening about seven o'clock.

In endeavor to ascertain the cause for the deed we learned that Miss Bettleyon was married about eight years ago to John Auman and to them was born three children. It appears, however, that all was not pleasant about the home and that family quarrels were frequent. It is alleged by neighbors that the husband abused her terribly, but under what circumstances we could not learn. Three or four years ago Auman deserted his wife and since that time she has been supporting herself and children.

It seems that these troubles were preying upon her mind and she finally decided to end her life in this manner. Besides her three children she is survived by her mother, Mrs. Margaret Rebecca Bettyleyon, of Potters Mills, and four brothers and four sisters. She was aged about 29 years.

Camp Hays Storm Wrecked.

During a terrific electrical storm which passed over Camp Hays at Gettysburg shortly before ten o'clock Thursday night three men and one child were struck dead by lightning. The dead are:

Private Barge, of the 18th.
Private Morrison, of the 10th.
Private Garver, of the 10th.

The child was in the Y. M. C. A. tent when it was struck and instantly killed.

The storm was one of the severest that ever visited that section. The Governor's tent was blown down during the height of the storm but he managed to escape being injured. There were many visitors in camp at the time and many who had been taken into the tents for shelter were exposed to the storm when the tents were blown down. To make matters worse the water became charged with electricity and it was dangerous to move around. All the lights were extinguished by the wind and rain and consternation reigned for some time.

Jacob S. Reed.

Jacob S. Reed, one of the respected citizens of Ferguson township, died at his home in Pine Grove Mills at four o'clock Monday morning after an illness of several months with heart trouble and other complications. He was born July 23rd, 1844, and was within three days of being 64 years of age. He was a member of the Presbyterian church and a man that commanded the respect of all. Mr. Reed was never married and his only survivors are two sisters and three brothers as follows: Sarah and Margaret at home; Wm. of Bellefonte; J. I. of Boalsburg, and David, of Pine Grove Mills. The funeral was held on Thursday, Rev. Campbell officiating. Interment was made in the cemetery at Pine Grove Mills.

Another Motto Picture.

Camp Meeting Program.

The official program for the annual camp meeting of the Newton Hamilton Camp association, which will open on August 13th and close on August 25th, has been issued.

The religious services will be in charge of Rev. W. C. Wallace, of Wallaceton. The music will be under the direction of S. W. Baker, of Bellwood and will use the Pentacostal Hymns No. 4, which will be for sale at the book store.

Special rates will be given by the Pennsylvania railroad. The following services will be held daily:

Young Lady's Narrow Escape.

Miss Abbie Cooke, daughter of Charles F. Cooke had a very narrow escape from drowning on Wednesday. A number of Bellefonte young ladies and gentlemen were guests at the Mason's camp at Curtin where M. I. Gardner and family and C. K. Hicklen and family are now camping. About the noon hour when they were walking along the banks of Bald Eagle creek Miss Cooke slipped and fell into the stream. The water at this place is very deep and the young lady was unable to do anything for herself and the other girls were unable to render any assistance. Frank Rowe, son of Recorder J. C. Rowe proved to be the hero of the hour and came to the assistance of the young lady who had been so unfortunate as to fall into the water. Mr. Rowe after some difficulty succeeded in rescuing her from a watery death, but the young lady was already unconscious and it took sometime to resuscitate her. But for the timely assistance of Mr. Rowe she would have drowned, and as it was she had a very narrow escape.

Ellis McCafferty Injured.

Ellis, the eight-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. James McCafferty, was badly injured Wednesday afternoon by falling from a wagon. The unfortunate lad was standing on the brake-beam on one of Tom Beaver's wagons which was passing the McCafferty home on Howard street and was holding the break stick when the beam broke and the boy fell to the ground. When he was picked up it was found that the calf of his leg was bursted open, it is thought that the wheel of the wagon caught the flesh just enough to cause it to burst. The little fellow was so badly frightened that he could not tell just how the injury was inflicted. Dr. Dale was called to dress his wound and seven stitches were required to sew it up. This operation was very painful to the lad as the condition of his heart would not permit of giving him an anaesthetic.

Stoner—Bachman.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan Bachman, of this place, was the scene of a very pretty wedding Wednesday afternoon when their daughter Caroline was united in marriage to Roy Stoner of Beech Creek. The ceremony was performed by Rev. John Hewitt in the presence of only the immediate friends of the contracting parties. The bride was attired in white and carried a bouquet of orange blossoms. Miss Emma Bachman, a sister of the bride, acted as bridesmaid, and George Stoner, a brother of the groom, was the best man. A reception followed the ceremony and a wedding dinner was served to the guests. The bridal couple left on the evening train for Beech Creek where the groom had prepared a furnished home for the reception of his bride, and where the young man is engaged in business.

SHOT BY A FOREIGNER

Stranger Fatally Wounds a Milroy Man When Refused $5.

ASSAILANT CAPTURED

And is Now Being Held in the Mifflin County Jail Waiting the Results of His Victim's Injuries

INJURED MAN TAKEN TO HOSPITAL.

Lewistown, July 27—Dominec Bequore, aged 23 years, is in the Mifflin county jail, charged with shooting Rudolph Gaghigan, 65 years of age, of Milroy. Bequore is said to be an Italian and a stranger in the community.

The charge is that Mr. Gaghigan, who is employed on the Mrs. McDowell farm as a farm hand, was going along the public road adjacent to the farm this morning when he was accosted by the foreigner, who was sitting at the roadside, apparently resting. Mr. Gaghigan bade him the time of day and attempted to pass on, when the stranger demanded $5. Upon being told that Mr. Gaghigan had no $5 for him, he pulled a revolver and when his elderly opponent turned and was in the act of picking up a stone with which to defend himself, the foreigner fired, the bullet striking in the small of the back and taking an upward course. Mr. Gaghigan fell to the ground, while his assailant took to his heels, but was speedily followed by a posse of irate citizens and captured. He was turned over to Sheriff A. C. Kemberling to await the result of his victim's injuries.

Mr. Gaghigan was hurried to the McDowell farm house, where his wound was dressed, but later in the day was taken to the Lewistown hospital. His recovery is doubtful.

Two Boys Drowned.

Donald Cupp, the 12-year-old son of John Cupp, of Williamsport, was drowned in Lycoming creek Wednesday afternoon. The boy with several companions went to a point near Third street, and when young Cupp was swimming about the trunk of an old tree he dove down into the branches. His trunks were caught on a piece of barbed wire and he was held a prisoner under water. His companions at first did not miss him and when they did their cries were heard by workmen who formed a line and rescued the lad. All efforts to resuscitate him failed and he had been too long under the water.

Following close upon the drowning of Cupp came the news of the drowning of Arthur Reed, another Williamsport boy. Reed left his home about 4 30 o'clock Wednesday afternoon and went to the Star mill pond where he usually went fishing. At supper time he did not return and a search was begun but nothing could be found of the missing boy up until 1 o'clock that night. Early next morning it was learned that he had been at the pond, and a search soon found the boy's body in the pond where he had been seen fishing.

Orvis Snake Story

For several years a great snake stories have been told about reptiles that have been captured in the vicinity of Orvis, but none could doubt these stories if they had been had been here lately and saw the excitement on the dry floor of the Hayes Run fire brick plant, when a large black snake, about six feet in length, was discovered taking a warm nap under a large shape brick. Soon the attention of every man on the floor was drawn to the bravery of Superintendent Gillespie, who with a nine inch brick and several handfuls of soft mud killed the reptile.

Reuben Smull.

Reuben Smull died Sunday night at Smullton of a complication of diseases aged 69 years, 8 months and 19 days. Mr. Smull was a farmer by occupation, but in his late years he lived a retired life, and was one of Haines township's respected citizens. He leaves to survive a widow and one son, George H. Smull of Smullton. Funeral services were held Wednesday forenoon at the home of the deceased, conducted by Rev. Haney. Interment was made in the Union cemetery at Rebersburg.

Snow Shoe's Big Day

Thursday was athletic day at Snow Shoe and Mountain City was the mecca for many of the Centre and Clinton county fans. The event was celebrated by the teams of the Centre and Clinton base ball league. Special trains were run over the Pennsylvania and New York Central railroads. The attendance was not very large from this part of the county owing to the fact that very few persons knew of the event until the day it came off. The east end of Centre and the lower part of Clinton county were well represented and were conveyed to the place over the N. Y. C. railroad in a train of nine coaches and pulled by two engines.

The leading events of the day were the two exhibition games of ball between teams of the Centre—Clinton league. The forenoon game was between the Woolrich and the Mill Hall teams. The Mill Hall Ponies won from the Woolpickers by the close score of 6 to 5.

The afternoon game was between the Howard team and the Red Roses of Beech Creek. The Millionaires defeated the Red Roses by the score 6-3.

There were also horse races and other sports during the day, dancing being one of the diversions offered for those who were inclined that day.

Misconstrued the Law.

The Williamsport Sun says: County Solicitor Strieby this morning received a communication from the auditor general's department in reference to a decision recently given by him to the county commissioners on the question of the liability of fraternal beneficial organizations to payment of the state tax of four mills on money at interest. The question was raised before the commissioners some time ago and at that time the solicitor wrote to the auditor general's department, asking for a certain information. He was referred to an act of assembly relating to the matter and from it came the conclusion that all fraternal beneficial orders were exempt from the payment of such tax. This was considerable interest to a number of local organizations as well as to many throughout the state, and as the finding of Solicitor was published in The Sun it received a wide circulation. A number of inquiries have been made of the auditor general and this led him to write Mr. Strieby, calling his attention to the fact that a misconstruction had been placed upon the law, which, he says, applies only to grand lodges and not to subordinate bodies. Subordinate lodges, he says, are required to pay the state tax on investments and are not exempt, as had been supposed.

Received Sad News.

Mrs. Oscar Yerger, on Bishop street, Monday morning received word from New Martinsville, W. Va., that her sister, Mrs. Alice Long Keefer, had died suddenly Sunday evening. About six weeks ago Mrs. Keefer gave birth to a baby and had been getting along well, as Mrs. Yerger had just received a letter several days ago stating so. Mrs. Keefer was a daughter of J. Z. and Kate M. Long, of Howard. Her father died several years ago and Mrs. Long had been visiting her daughter for some time. Besides her sister Mrs. Yerger, she is survived by another sister, Mrs. Bertha McGee, of McGees Mills, and two brothers Rev. Wm. Long, who is located in West Virginia, and Clyde at Howard.

The remains were taken to Howard Tuesday evening and the funeral services and interment weree held at that place.

George H. Bradt

George H. Bradt died at the National sanitarium Altoona at 9:45 o'clock on Sunday morning of a complication of diseases. The deceased was born in Fairfax, Va., November 11, 1859. He was a son of A H. and Susan Bradt, deceased and was married at Snow Shoe, Centre county, to Cora A. Price, who survives, as do also eight children, as follows: Jennie, Harry Clara, Maude, George, Edna, Orlando and Margaret Bradt, all at home. He was also survived by one brother, Orlando W., and two sisters—Jennie and Ella, of Washington, D. C. He was a member of the Lutheran church of Bellefonte.

Amendments to be Printed.

Orders are being sent out from the office of the Secretary of the Commonwealth at Harrisburg for advertising the proposed amendments to the constitution in about 150 papers of the commonwealth. The advertising is to appear thirteen times between now and the convening of the legislature. Should the coming legislature approve of the amendments as adopted by the last session they will be laid before the people for voting at the election next fall.

TAFT LAUDS ROOSEVELT

And Outlines Policies in Acceptance

HE HAS BEEN NOTIFIED

Republican Candidate Announces Political Tenets—Cincinnati Crowded and in Gala Attire

IT WAS A GREAT DEMONSTRATION

Cincinnati, July 28.—William Howard Taft today accepted the Republican Presidential nomination. His official notification combined a political jubilee for the city of Cincinnati and its environs and historic gathering of national party leaders and an occasion for the announcement by the candidate of his political tenets, designed as the text of Republican oratory throughout the campaign.

Notification day broke with a roar of cannon from the seven hills which looked down at 7 o'clock through the customary haze and smoke to discover the city in a flutter of liveliest animation for the ceremonies at the historic old Taft mansion on Pike street.

The name of "Taft" was on every lip and the "Taft smile" was universally in evidence.

It was half after nine o'clock when the crowds began to participate in the exercise. This early ceremony constituted a simple exposition of neighborly affection. Chas. P. Taft was made custodian of a huge American flag which was raised to the top of a fifty foot mast erected in the front yard of the Taft mansion—the gift of the people of Cincinnati to the Taft family with the single stipulation that it be raised whenever the Candidate is in the city and lowered during his absence.

An escort of citizens gathered early at the Hotel Sinton, from which the notification committee, in carriages, moved toward the Taft home at 10 45 a. m. Mrs. William H. Taft arrived from Hot Springs this morning.

At the hour for the formal notification, shortly after noon, the chairman of the notification committee, Senator William Warner, of Missouri, escorted Mr. Taft to the platform extending over the old stone steps leading to the entrance of the mansion. Great cheering greeted the appearance of the candidate. As soon as this subsided, Senator Warner addressed Mr. Taft, telling him of the high esteem of which he was held not only by those of his own political faith, but by his fellow citizens without regard to party. He concluded by saying:

"It is gratifying to his countrymen to reflect that of Roosevelt's administration you have been a conspicuous part, as you were of the administration of Mr. McKinley, whose accomplishments mark a national progress unsurpassed in all of our previous national life.

"It therefore, gives me genuine pleasure Mr. Taft to present to you this formal nomination from the Republican party, whose governmental policies have for so long "kept in balance the mighty forcet of the nation and to whose continued guidance of the nation we have every reasonable right to believe that the people are now looking.

Mr. Taft's address was more than twelve thousand words in length, taking up in order the great points at issue between the two parties. For the most part his speech was a simple, but emphatic reiteration of the principles laid down in the platform but on mooted questions, such as the physical valuation of railways, government by injunction, the tariff, banks and banking, the rights of the negro, etc., issues made prominent in the Democratic platform, Mr. Taft dwelt a length and in detail.

Royal Arcanum Meets.

Bellefonte Council No. 1050 Royal Arcanum met in their hall and transacted busines of importance July 27th 1908. With the following visitors, Past Grand Regent W. H. Druckenmiller, from Sunbury, who favored council with an interesting talk on Arcanum work, followed by District Deputy Geo. N. Krause, from Milton, in making Royal Arcanum work plain. Also the following Royal Arcanum members from Lock Haven, Robert P. Miller, C. E. Shoemaker, A. A. Hall, and C. E. Gross. There was a talk from one and all ending in Ceader's ice cream parlor. It was a good meeting, making each of us a better worker.

Brick for State Roads.

Commenting on the building of state roads an exchange says that a fatal mistake is made concerning the durability of the roads built under state supervision. Although they are well built the roads will need repairs in time, and it was a fault of the turnpike companies to build good roads and then let them go by default. The exchange thinks that this will be the case with the state roads. It is further added:

We believe the time is not far distant when state roads in Pennsylvania will be constructed of brick instead of macadam. While macadam is a great improvement over dirt roads, brick is rapidly displacing the former and is becoming more popular as its advantages are made known.

One element in favor of brick is the matter of cost. It is asserted that a properly constructed brick highway can be built at even less cost, especially in this section of the country, where much of the macadam material has to be shipped in at a cost much in excess of the material's value. The preparation of the road for brick is no more expensive than that for macadam, and its lasting qualities are much greater.

It is a fact that however carefully a macadam road is built it wears out rapidly and requires almost constant attedtion. Brick paving lasts for years and where a section of road does yield through sinking or wear it can be replaced easily and at no great cost.

The test has already been made and the unanimous opinion is that brick is much the superior. It is said that the State Highway Commissioner is looking with favor on the brick road and that will help along where new highways are being projected.

When Bryan was a Reporter

It is said that while acting as a reporter for an Omaha newspaper at the Democratic national convention that nominated Grover Cleveland, William J. Bryan, then a young, unkpown, and struggling newspaper reporter, remarked, as he looked on at the nominating spectacle, that he believed any one who would make a hard fight for the honor, and who went about it in the right way, could have a chance of getting it. This young newspaper reporter has lived to see the time when he has not only been twice nominated and twice defeated for the presidency, but when at last he has so completely exercised his popular influence over the party that he has it completely Bryanized. His struggle for control of the Democratic National Committee, going to the extremity even of throwing out Committeeman Guffey, of Pennsylvania, who had a clear majority of the delegates, has but one purpose, and that is either the nomination of Bryan again in 1912, or the dictation of the nomination by himself. If this be not the case let him deny it in his letter of acceptance.

Fumes Cause Man to Fall

Jacob Metterling who resides near Mill Hall was injured Friday morning last by falling into a well which he had been digging. On Thursday when he had reached a depth of 29 feet a rock was encountered and a stick of dynamite was secured to remove it. After the blast the ill-smelling smoke remained in the well and he did not attempt to go into the well until the next day. Soon after being let down to the bottom by his wife and daughter he called to them that he was becoming dizzy. He got into the bucket and the two were drawing him up and when within about ten feet of the top he was overcome and fell to the bottom of the well a distance of about 19 feet. They called for assistance and the man was gotten out and revived. While no bones were broken Mr. Metterling's back was injured and he was considerably bruised.

Spent Night in their Auto.

W. R. Prior, president of the Prior and Sallada Electrical company, Mrs. Prior and Miss Florence Wise, of Williamsport, and H. Swainbank, of Wilkesbarre, had quite an experience the other night on the return part of an automobile trip from Wilkesbarre. Early in the evening it was noticed that the machine had lost a tire. Mr. Prior walked back for it and had to go two and a half miles before he found it. By the time he had returned and the machine was ready to start a storm overtook them. Finally they reached a crossroad in the mountains and not knowing their way, fearing to make a false turn in the darkness, they drew the curtains and made themselves as comfortable as possible for the night. In the morning they found they were on the wrong road, but soon righted themselves and proceeded to Williamsport.

DOLLIE AND THE MANEATER.

By Colin S. Collins.

Copyrighted, 1908, by Associated Literary Press.

"I can't help it because I am rich, can I?"

Paul Vinton spoke of his wealth as though it were a thing accursed. Dollie Darcy shook her head with judicial solemnity.

"I don't suppose that you can," she admitted. "At the same time, Paul, you cannot blame me for taking an interest in people who do things."

"Such as waiting on table?" retorted Vinton. "I don't see anything to command respectful admiration in a job like that."

"But he is a college man," reminded Dollie. "Just fancy a student so anxious to learn that he will wait on table in a hotel to gain the funds for his tuition!"

"He would do well to go to a grammar school first," growled Vinton. "He waited on me this morning and when I asked for eggs he told me that 'the eggs isn't very fresh.' That's good grammar for a college student, and then his slang is something weird."

"George Ade uses slang," cited Dollie defensively. "I'm sure that no one ever accused Mr. Ade of being common."

"Because he keeps his slang for his books and plays," reminded Vinton.

Dollie checked the sharp speech that sprang to her lips and hurried down the piazza steps to join a bespectacled youth who appeared around the corner of the hotel.

He was not an inviting sort of person. One ear was considerably larger than the other and an aggressive chin belied a mildness of appearance due to the large lensed spectacles he wore. His hands and feet were large and unmanageable and his clothes fitted him as though they had been made for a man of more generous build.

The Hotel Breeze had solved the servant problem by employing college students as waiters. It had become fashionable to take an interest in these struggling aspirants for learning, and Dollie Darcy was nothing if not fashionable. Even though it threatened a break with Paul Vinton—whom she expected to marry some day—she insisted on having her student to be interested in.

Dollie had picked out Brady as the favored one for the reason that he seemed the most forlorn and desolate one in the lot. There was something almost pathetic to her in the idea of this man who maltreated the English language so brutally seeking a higher education, and she found his personality interesting and at times amusing.

There were other times when the man bored her sadly, but she would not confess that she found him tiresome lest Paul should think the victory lay with him.

Every evening when the tables had been cleared and the dining room put in order Brady would slip down to the beach and walk or sit with Dollie, while Vinton sat on the piazza and vowed that he would leave the place for some better resort where the waiters were not the fad of the moment.

He never went, for on second thoughts he told himself it would be better to stay on and look after Dollie. She must tire of her fad presently, and perhaps on the rebound he might induce her to say the coveted "Yes."

Dismally Vinton realized that the waiting game was bound to be a long one, and chancing upon Dollie waiting on the sands for her waiter protege Paul was moved to reopen his argument.

Following an unusually hot day the humidity of an approaching storm deprived the sufferers of the relief of the night breezes. Dollie was tired and irritable and in no frame of mind for an argument. Both raised their voices slightly above the pitch of good breeding, and Brady, coming upon them suddenly, gathered that there had been a dispute.

"Has this guy been unbuttonin' his lip?" he demanded of Dollie.

Perhaps it was the heat, perhaps it was the memory of some of the things that Vinton had said. At any rate, there was a barely perceptible pause before Dollie languidly responded:

"He has been very annoying. I am glad you have come," she said.

Brady picked up a pebble and tossed it down the beach.

"Go after it," he urged. "You ain't wanted here, Bo. Notify your feet to get busy with your shoes and peddle hard."

"I presume you are trying to urge me to go away," suggested Vinton coldly.

"You've got a fine presumer," commended Brady. "Gear it up a little higher. It's runnin' too slow."

"I am grateful for your advice," said Vinton with sarcasm that appeared to be lost upon the other, "but it is not my intention to take myself off until Miss Darcy signifies to me that my presence here is unwelcome."

"You heard her say that you made her tired," reminded Brady. "Be a nice little boy, Bo, and go play in the next yard. There's a fine cellar door there. Go slide down it."

Vinton looked inquiringly at Dollie, but she made no sign. Brady was displaying a new phase of his many sided character and she found it rather interesting. Vinton, too, puzzled her and she wanted to see what he would do.

She had not long to wait, for, with a final appeal to take a walk before his feet hurt him and he couldn't, Brady advanced toward his antagonist.

Short and sharp was the encounter. Brady struck first, and Vinton, nothing loath, responded. In both men the primal instinct was aroused, and they fought for the favor of a woman as men in the stone age fought.

For the moment Vinton forgot Dollie's presence, forgot everything except his desire to avenge the blow.

Brady had slipped off his glasses at the first sign of trouble and he was somewhat at a disadvantage, but for all of that he had the best of the fight, though Vinton had taken boxing lessons from an old champion and was accounted more than ordinarily skillful at the game.

They were on a strip of the beach little frequented in the evening and the encounter attracted no attention. In five minutes Vinton was down and out and Dollie was kneeling beside him in the sand seeking to restore him to consciousness. He opened his eyes presently and smiled into Dollie's anxious face.

"It's all right," he said weakly. "That little college student of yours has the skill of a professional prize fighter."

"Sure!" assented Brady. "You was goin' some, Bo, but your company was too fast. I used to be the Cherry hill maneater until me eyes went on the blink and I had to look for somethin' easier. I been teachin' the rah-rah boys to handle their hams lately. It's a puddin' alongside the other game. The doc told me to get some salt air for the summer an' I'm pickin' a piece of the coin while I'm doin' it. I fought Terry five rounds to a draw once," he added with pride.

"And now you are studying for college?" asked Dollie wonderingly.

"I was teachin'," explained the maneater. "I was professor of boxin'. What's all this row about college anyway? When the boss cook hired me he says, 'I s'pose you come from college?' And I told him I just come from there. Now you're harpin' on the same string."

"The waiters this season are all students working their way through college," explained Dollie. "That was why I"—

She paused in confusion and Brady completed the sentence for her.

"That was why you mashed me?" he asked good naturedly. "I'm sorry for you, sis, but I ain't the real goods. Better stick to his job lots over there. He's in your class. I ain't no heavyweight."

Dollie regarded Paul, nursing a rapidly blackening optic, and smiled. At the moment Vinton seemed anything but romantic.

"That's all right," interposed the maneater understandingly. "A bit of raw steak will fix that up. He's the man to tie to, all right. There ain't many chaps like him that could give me the run he did. You hook up."

"Thank you. I will take your advice," declared Dollie as she sank down on the sand beside Vinton, and seeing that he was no longer wanted the maneater slipped away, rubbing his cauliflower ear reflectively.

"I hope he won't beat the little dame," he said musingly. "He sure can hit, even if he can't lick me." And the maneater never realized that with Cupid as referee Paul was the winner after all.

English as Sung.

I live opposite to a school where music is carefully and constantly taught. The children have acquired the difficult art of dropping a semitone a minute. But the accent employed is even more interesting than the tone system. Here is a favorite school song:

Fiahrs, luvly fiahrs, in a garden yeh m, see,
The rowses there with their reuby lip.
Penks the 'unny by loves teh sip,
Teulips, teulips, gy as a butterfly's wing.
Merrygolds rich as the crahn of a king,
Rich as the crahn of a king,
But none seh fair teh me,
None seh fair teh me,
As these wildwood fiahrs,
Sweet wild fiahrs.

THE CRIME OF GOSSIP

Young Lady's Mind was Unbalanced Through a Vile Story

TAKEN TO THE ASYLUM

She Tried to Escape Her Tormentors but Could Not Evade Their Malicious Concoctions

HER CONDITION IS A PITIABLE ONE

The following account from the Williamsport News serves to fully illustrate the evils of the common practice of gossip and carries with it a valuable lesson.

Mentally unbalanced because she had been the victim of vile gossip, Mary Mayer of Williamsport, aged about 37 years, a rubber and silk worker, was Wednesday afternoon removed to the state hospital for the insane at Danville. She was accompanied by an officer of the police station and Mrs. Elmer H. Ohl, steward of the city home. Miss Mayer is a pretty young woman and, from the story of her past life, seems to have been a victim of jealous girls who worked with her in the Lycoming rubber plant several years ago. A person who claims to know the circumstances says that while she was employed at the rubber works she was given an opportunity to step higher by a substantial promotion.

It seems that her fellow workers became jealous of her prospects and began to hatch all sorts of stories which falsely reflected on her reputation. Finally she lost the promotion. Her troubles did not end there. The strained feelings between the other girls and herself developed and finally she went to Philadelphia, where she expected employment in a large silk mill. There she expected to be free from the malicious tales, but the stories soon found their way to Philadelphia, and in a few months she found herself in the same atmosphere. It is said that this preyed upon her and finally caused her mind to become unbalanced.

Recently she returned to Williamsport and lived with a sister, but she became unmanageable, and finally the police were asked to aid in restraining her. She had a desire to run away from home. She was taken in charge by the police Tuesday evening and detained until Wednesday at noon. Sergeant Worral had some trouble keeping her in the station. He did not lock her up, desiring to refrain from humiliating her any more than possible, and she occupied the easy chair in his office all morning. Several times she started to run out and hurried steps were required to take her back.

Old Men on the Rolls

The Pennsylvania railroad payrolls show that 316 men have been in the company's service more than 50 years, more than have worked so long for the Federal government. Ten of these have worked over 60 years and one 69 years. The man who has been on the payroll for the longest period is William Durham, who, as mule driver, entered the service of the Delaware & Raritan canal in June, 1839, even before the Pennsylvania railroad was chartered. He is one of the 1,013 men who have been pensioned by the company for completing 40 years of active service. At the time of his retirement he was pilot on the floating equipment at Jersey City.

The oldest employe is David B. Brice, who was born November 3, 1818. Before his retirement he was on the Sunbury division. Three men have been in the service for 59 years. They are James Cullen, of Spruce Creek, of the Middle division; William Bottomstone, of the Susquehanna division, and Mndrew Nebginer, of the Philadelphia division. The Pennsylvania employs 293 men over 70 years of age, against 12 on the United States government pay rolls.

Of the employes of the Pennsylvania railroad in active service 115 are 61 years of age, 118 are 64 years old, 114 are 67 and 105 are 69. Sixty-seven of the 85 principal officers of the Pennsylvania railroad company started as beginners and, with few exceptions, have been with it ever since. Their average age is 51 years and the average length of service is 26 years.

Use Your Leisure Time.

If you have an hour to spend each day don't idle it away, for time is valuable. It will pay you to write to the Circulation Department of "The Philadelphia Press," mentioning this paper, and they will send you an interesting book of advice, telling how to make use of your spare moments and how to make a considerable sum of money for a little work you can do very easily. A postal card will bring this information to you. Don't put it off, write at once, for it will mean dollars to you. Address Circulation Department, "The Press," Seventh and Chestnut Streets, Philadelphia.

A Dispenser of Smiles.

Her mother said: "Oh, dear! Isn't that awful? What will people think?" but the people themselves seemed to think it about the prettiest incident they had met that day.

She was a very little girl, white frocked, pink ribboned, brown curled. With her mother she left the subway train at the Grand Central station. The usual confusion prevailed. Timid travelers grabbed suit cases and bundles and exclaimed, "Oh, do we change here?" Trainmen on the platform shouted out directions for local and express trains and the guards of that particular car adjured the passengers frequently and vehemently to "Step lively!" and to "Watch the step." Then all of a sudden there was a lull in the uproar. The little girl was leaving the car. She stopped at the door, looked back and waved her hand.

"Goodby, everybody," she said.

The words carried to the far end of the car. They made every one sit up. Two or three persons called out a responsive "Goodby," two or three said "Bless the child," and all smiled.—New York Press.

The Sea Serpent.

When fourteen miles off the coast of Brazil M. J. Nicoll, author of "Three Voyages of a Naturalist," observed a sea serpent which came within about fifty yards of the ship. "All that we could see was a dorsal fin about four feet long sticking up about two feet from the water. The fin was a brownish black color and much resembled a gigantic piece of ribbon seaweed. Below the water we could indirectly see a very large brownish black patch, but could not make out the shape of the creature. Every now and then the fin disappeared below the water. Suddenly an eel-like neck, about six feet long and of the thickness of a man's thigh, having a head shaped like that of a turtle, appeared in front of the fin, lashing up the water with a curious wriggling movement. This creature was an example, I consider, of what has been so often reported, for want of a better name, as the 'great sea serpent.' I feel sure, however, that it was not a reptile that we saw, but a mammal."

Bought His Own Work.

To come across a bit of one's own work in print is an experience not ordinarily exasperating to an author, but a Washington writer on scientific matters was recently not very agreeably surprised by such a development.

It appears that the writer was collecting material for a monograph on electro magnetism when word came to him of a valuable paper on the subject not long before published in a Berlin journal devoted to science. Thinking that the paper would be of use to him in the work in hand, he had it translated. When the English version was laid before him, together with quite a bill for the translator's labor, what was the disgust of the writer to find that the article was nothing more or less than a German reproduction of an article of his own published the year before in an English journal. And he had paid twice as much for the translation as he had received for the original article!—Washington Star.

A Dream Superstition.

I heard what was to me at least a new piece of superstition the other day and when I think of the risks I've run all these years because I didn't know of it my blood runs cold. I met a woman from Virginia in market, and the talk falling on dreams I recalled a most blood curdling nightmare I had had the night before.

"I must tell you what I dreamed last night," I said.

"Let me ask first whether it's a pleasant or an unpleasant dream?" said the lady from Virginia.

"Decidedly unpleasant."

"Then for mercy's sake don't tell it!" said she. "Never tell a bad dream on Saturday, for we say in Virginia:

"Friday night's dream on Saturday told
Is sure to come true, no matter how old."

Australian Cadets.

All children in Australia are drilled, but the elder boys are attached to the Australian military forces by means of the cadet corps. Almost every large school has its band of cadets, who wear neat khaki uniforms and are armed with light rifles, in the use of which they are frequently instructed. Every year those boys have shooting matches, and the scores prove that among the youngsters there are many who have already become skilled marksmen.—London Standard.

Giving Them Credit.

"You know," said the distinguished oriental who manifests much curiosity, "that the Chinese discovered the art of printing from type thousands of years ago?"

"Yes," replied the man who was being interviewed. "And incidentally I don't doubt that they were the original inventors of the interrogation point."—Washington Star.

Her Sponge Cake.

A young bride, after serving to her husband a Sunday dinner that was so-so, said as the mince pie was brought on, "I intended, dear, to have some sponge cake, too, but it has been a total failure." "How was that?" the husband asked in a disappointed tone.

Not Her Abode.

"My income is small," said a rather dilatory lover, "and perhaps it is cruel of me to take you from your father's roof."

"But I don't live on the roof," was the prompt reply.

According to Chinese law, a wife who is too talkative may be divorced.

The Road Craze

Automobilists stirred by the efforts to obtain good roads in all parts of the State and by the proposal of State Commissioner of Highways J. W. Hunter to have the county seat of each of the sixty-seven counties in the State connected by State roads are proposing the building of a State road from the junction of the Susquehanna river and the northern boarder of the State and the junction of the river and the southern boarder. The object, they say is to make a good road between Binghamton and Baltimore, which shall on one side of it or the other follow the course of the Susquehanna river, passing through Harrisburg.

They have developed a great deal of enthusiasm about this proposed road, and it is not unlikely that active measures will be taken to bring the plan to the notice of the State Legislature at the next session.

In some places along the proposed route there are good roads now, while in others the roads are poorly built and not kept in good condition. The promoters of the idea say such a route would be extremely popular with the automobilists of New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland and would receive strong support.

A New Milk Law

Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust has prepared a new milk and cream act which the legislature will be asked to pass at its next session.

The act will have three important regulations. One will provide that all cream sold must contain at least fifteen per cent butter fat. The other two will be that no milk shall contain added water and that no butter fat at all shall be removed from milk; in other words, milk must be sold to the consumer exactly as it comes from the cow.

Experience of the dairy and food division has proved that fifteen per cent of butter fat in cream is a fair proportion. Of 500 samples of cream taken last year about fifty contained less than fifteen per cent of butter fat and about twenty-five contained less than twelve per cent.

Brick Works Start

The Centre Brick and Clay company at Orvis started their machinery on Wednesday and everything installed worked like clockwork and in a few days will be turning out a high grade of building brick. Judge Ellis L. Orvis, after whom the town was named, is largely interested in the brick industry at that place and is one of the promoters of the new works. The new plant is located about half a mile up Beech Creek from Orvis station on the New York Central railroad. The starting of an additional brick works there will concrete quite a boom to the mountain town.

Y. M. C. A. Convention.

S. D. Gearhart, chairman of the district committee, and W. D. Hevener, general secretary of the Sunbury association, were in Bellefonte on Wednesday to confer with the local association men regarding the district convention which will be held here October 16-18.

A very strong program is assured, which the men in charge believe will be of great benefit to the district and local work.

From the Millheim Journal

Last Thursday while Forest Stover, of Haines township, was using his binder cutting grain in the field, his young son, George, got on the platform of the binder unknown to him. When the binder started Mr. Stover thought he heard something wrong and the cries of the boy soon convinced him that there was. He ran back and found that the boy's right foot had been caught in the cog wheels of the machine and that the large toe had been completely severed from the foot.

On Monday, July 6, B. F. Stover was assisting his son, Forest, in taking a pump stock out of the well on his farm in Haines township. Two horses were hitched to a rope and tackle and Mr. Stover was driving them. When the end of the rope was reached the horses could not be stopped and the frame work to which the tackle was fastened was torn down and thrown on Mr. Stover. He was picked up and carried into the house in an unconscious state and a physician sent for, who found Mr. Stover severely injured about the head and chest. For several days his condition was serious, but at this writing he is able to be about again.

A Worthy Charity

A worthy charity has been generously bestowed upon Mrs. Levine, widow of the late Leopold Levine, who died in Lock Haven last week by a number of Hebrew friends and relatives. The movement was inaugurated by S. Epstein says the Express, and carried to a successful conclusion by that gentleman, who succeeded in raising the sum of $241 59 for the benfit of the bereaved widow and her four children, the oldest being eight years of age and the youngest but four weeks.

The money collected will be used as a nucleus for starting Mrs. Levine in business and a store room has been secured at West Park and Clinton streets. We mention this because it is a noble movement to assist the widow and not only commendable but highly praiseworthy and those who contributed will receive their just reward.

A Free Scholarship

Any young man or woman who is a bona fide patron of this paper may secure free instruction of Music of Elocution.

The Ithaca Conservatory of Music, with the desire to stimulate the study of these arts, offer two Scholarships to applicants from the State of Pennsylvania, valued at $100 and is good for the term of twenty weeks beginning with the opening of the school year, September 10 1908, in any of the following departments: Voice, Violin, Piano and Elocution. These scholarships are awarded upon competition which is open to anyone desiring a musical or literary education. Anyone wishing to enter the competition of desiring information should write to Mr. George C. Williams, the General Manager of the Ithaca Conservatory of Musid, Ithaca, N. Y., before September 1, 1908.

Methodist Day July 30

On Methodist Day, Thursday July 30, at Lakemont park, Altoona, Bishop D. H. Moore, D. D., LL. D. and President Samuel Dickie, LL. D. of Albion College, Mich., will be among the speakers. Special music by chorus and orchestra.

A SUCCESSFUL CREAMERY.

In the locality in which the writer lives is located one of the most successful co-operative creameries in the north part of the state. It has been in successful operation for the past twenty years or more and has survived the sharp competition of nearby concerns and the centralized plants of larger cities. To those living in localities where the creamery business is not on a satisfactory basis or where there is no creamery at all some brief account of this co-operative plant may be of interest. The stock of the company, which is capitalized at $2,500, is held by the many patrons living in the territory tributary in shares of $10. While a stockholder may own more than one share, he is allowed to cast but one vote. At present no member owns more than one share. Election of officers is held annually early in January. These consist of a board of six directors, a manager, treasurer and buttermaker, the latter being hired by the directors. While a good deal of rivalry and interest develop now and then in the annual elections, there has been a singular freedom from friction touching the more important aspects of the management of the plant, a respect in which many similar enterprises go to smash. There are at present close to 500 cream patrons. During the month of June the output was a trifle over 57,000 pounds, all of the butter but the small amount retailed locally being sold for top notch prices on the New York market. The plant proper, valued at $3,000, consists of the building, one 1,000 gallon capacity cream vat, one 700 gallon capacity ripener and agitator, one 1,000 pound capacity churn, one twelve horsepower steam engine and an eighteen horsepower boiler, as well as cream testers, cream tanks, cans, etc. An icehouse is kept in connection sufficient to supply needs during the year. The wisdom of the directors who have had the management of affairs in the past has been chiefly manifested in the hiring of competent managers and a first class buttermaker and keeping him for a period of years. This has resulted in uniformity of butter product and stability and satisfaction in the general conduct of the business. Every community where dairying is possible should have a creamery of this general type unless the field is already occupied by an institution which answers the same purpose.

ALFALFA CULTURE.

Where one wishes to make a trial of growing alfalfa the piece of land on which it is to be grown should be put in the best of tilth, as for a big crop of corn, and enriched with several loads of stable manure per acre. Alfalfa is like most other members of the clover family in that it does not do well on poorly drained or wet soil. For late summer sowing the seed should be put in not later than Aug. 15 at the rate of twenty to thirty pounds per acre. The legume will gain a foothold the more readily if some soil from an old alfalfa field is put on the land with the manure with which it is fertilized. Where no such field is within reach soil from a spot where sweet clover has grown will answer the same purpose. The advantage of late summer sowing of alfalfa lies in the fact that most of the weed seeds in the soil have in all probability been germinated and destroyed, while those that do sprout will be held in check by the dry weather which usually prevails at that time of year. One of the greatest handicaps in getting a start in alfalfa in some localities is the pest of grasshoppers, which are so destructive to the young alfalfa plants in some seasons that it is useless to attempt starting a patch unless poultry has a free run of the farm.

THE WORK OF HAIL.

One of the most destructive hailstorms that ever visited the northern states passed over southwestern Wisconsin, northeastern Iowa and southeastern Minnesota about the middle of June. The path of the storm seems to have been about 150 miles long and from eight to eighteen miles wide. In this area the destruction was terrific, hailstones ranging in size from peas to goose eggs falling for a period of twenty minutes. As will be readily understood, this meant death to young stock of all kinds, as well as to ducks, geese, turkeys and chickens. One who visited fields of corn and oats hit by this storm stated that vegetation of all kinds was ground to pulp and had been swept clean from the fields by the water which fell at the same time. So finely was vegetation macerated that much of it was blown away like chaff by the wind. In places in the track of this storm orchards were totally ruined and forest trees stripped of all their leaves and small branches, while shingles were split to pieces and knocked off and siding badly cracked and battered.

It is said that leaves of tansy placed in the food cupboards will drive ants away.

Cellars and cesspools may be greatly sweetened by scattering slaked lime in them. Where this cannot be had wood ashes will answer much the same purpose.

In latitudes where they do well soy beans and cowpeas make excellent cover crops for the orchard. Cut at the proper time, the peas make excellent cow feed, while the beans may be utilized to good advantage by mixing them with corn for the silo.

Buckwheat, which is grown primarily for the grain which it produces, has but minor value as a forage crop. One hundred pounds of dry buckwheat hay contain 7.7 pounds of protein, 49.2 pounds of carbohydrates and 1.8 pounds of fat. As a roughage it is not as good as oats, barley or corn.

Time was when a manure spreader was considered as a sort of agricultural extravagance, good only for the faddist or the man who had money to throw away. It's different now, however. Every man who pretends to keep up with the times in his farming operations and who would realize the greatest value out of his farm fertilizers owns one of these machines.

Of the hardy climbing roses there is none which surpasses the Seven Sisters. While it does not attain the length of the Prairie Queen, it is more bushy and carries many more blossoms, which are a bright red on opening and fade gradually to pink and then to almost white before the petals fall. This variety is entirely hardy and requires no covering. If a rambler is wanted, the crimson is unsurpassed, while an equally fine climber with pink blossoms is the Dorothy Perkins.

Foxtail or wild barley is one of the nasty grasses with which the farmer and orchardist has to contend, especially in those spots where a thorough cultivation of the soil is impossible. Fortunately this grass is an annual and multiplies only by seed. As a consequence all that is necessary to eradicate it is to prevent any seed from maturing. Foxtail is not only no good for fodder, but worries the fellow who handles it in that the barbed heads work into his socks and are likely to crawl up his pants legs.

A representative of the United States department of agriculture who has returned to Washington from a trip of exploration and inspection in China and Manchuria has brought back samples of an upland rice which thrives in Manchuria under about the same conditions which prevail in the central portions of the corn belt. The new "find" will be given a thorough testing under American conditions, and a hope is entertained by the department officials that its introduction will prove as successful and profitable a venture as was the case with the durum or macaroni wheat.

Durum wheat, a variety introduced by the United States department of agriculture some ten years ago, is especially adapted to the semiarid conditions to be found in the states west of the Mississippi river, in sections where the rainfall is twenty inches per annum or less. It is stated that if grown where the rainfall exceeds twenty inches or where irrigation has to be resorted to the wheat produced, instead of being hard, which the Latin name durum means, is a poor and soft low grade wheat. Owing to this fact this variety is not greatly curtailing the growing of other varieties of wheat, but is occupying lands which are not devoted to growing any tilled crop.

The Norwegian hay box or fireless cooker has lately been put on the market and can be bought for about $10. The box proper is made of golden oak and contains several tin compartments suited to the cooking of meat, vegetables, cereals, etc. A boil of beef cooked on the stove for an hour will cook thoroughly overnight. Oatmeal boiled on the stove for five minutes and placed in the cooker at night comes out perfectly cooked in the morning. Vegetables brought a-boil on the stove will be ready for the table in three or four hours, depending somewhat upon the variety. One can make the cooker for a good deal less than the price named by taking a box of the desired size, padding the bottom, sides and ends with hay or other close fibered stuff and the cover with a mat of the same stuff that will serve to check a radiation of the heat.

There are some sections of the country where oats are grown where there is considerable complaint from damage by the stalk borer, a worm that enters the plant at a joint near the ground and gradually works its way as far up as it can. The result is that the stalk is greatly weakened and in many cases breaks over, being incapacitated for the proper nourishment of the grain it bears. Since the damage done by the worm is entirely internal and it remains out of sight until it seeks a new feeding place, there is no effective way of fighting it. The only preventive, and that but partial and indirect, is to so rotate the crops on the land, with the cleanest possible cultivation, that the weeds in which the worm breeds and feeds may be reduced to a minimum. Among the common weeds on which the stalk borer works are pigweed, smartweed and lamb's quarter. Among cultivated plants which it attacks are tomato and potato vines, its damage to the latter being often considerable.

Lubricating oil is cheaper than new machinery or machine repairs and axle grease than horseflesh, corn and oats. Many in practice seem to show that they are oblivious of this fact.

Turnips will attain a good size if the seed is sown about the last week in July, though we have had success with them sowing the seed a week or ten days later than this, when conditions were favorable.

In spite of the precautions that are taken in the matter of combating the work of numerous insect pests, estimates made by the department of agriculture place the loss to agricultural and horticultural interests of the country at more than $700,000,000 annually.

According to recent census reports, land earnings were as follows in the group of states given: Wisconsin, $18.71 per acre; Michigan, $18.10; Illinois, $16.51; Indiana, $17.73; Iowa, $16.48; Minnesota, $10.69; Kansas, $10.92; Nebraska, $10.72, and the Dakotas a trifle less than $10 each.

A pretty level headed horseman we know is this season working two stallions of which he has the care in his regular farm operations. They look a trifle ratty in general appearance, and their ribs can be counted without trouble, but it is safe to say that they will sire more strong colts than they would if they loafed around with nothing to do and were in shape to enter the show pen all the time.

Fifty-nine per cent of the total area of Japan, or 58,000,000 acres, is devoted to forests. Careful management of these areas with a view to preserving them was taken up before the beginning of the Christian era, while in the centuries immediately following there was systematic planting of trees on watersheds to prevent destruction by floods. The state forests of Japan produce at present about 2,000,000,000 cubic feet of timber each year.

There are some men who may still be skeptical of the worth of the cream separator as an adjunct of the dairy, but the fact remains that the use of the machine enables one to get from 10 to 25 per cent more of butter fat out of milk than is possible with the gravity or hand skimming system. While the young calf should be given a start on whole new milk, it is conceded that a fat forming ration can be fed which is vastly more economical than butter fat worth from 20 to 25 cents a pound.

We recently noted the case of the death of quite a flock of hens where the primary difficulty seemed to be a lack of green food. The chickens in question were fed the scraps from a boarding house, which contained variety enough, but were provided with no green food. When chickens run at large it is worth while noting how much of their time they will spend at pasture—that is, eating green stuff. This ought to give a pretty good hint as to what they ought to have in the way of green food when kept confined.

While an inspection of the surface of the ground and sidewalks following a heavy thunder shower seems to furnish conclusive proof that angleworms enjoy a bath and a certain amount of water, it is quite as clear that too much water will drown them just as it does rats, mice or other land animals. We noticed the overflowed edge of a garden the other day in which thousands of angleworms lay dead, having apparently been attracted to the surface of the earth by the rising water and yet encountering so much of it that they drowned before they could crawl to dry land.

An article of food that is both cheap, nutritious and wholesome and yet one that is not consumed as largely as it should be is Dutch or cottage cheese. While a good many housewives aim to scald the sour milk so as to make a curd that is quite hard, a tenderer and much more delicious cheese is made by pouring just enough scalding water into a given quantity of cold sour milk to bring the temperature of the whole to about lukewarm or 100 degrees. This should be stirred thoroughly and after the curd has separated strained through a colander. Dress as much as is wanted for one meal with salt, pepper and rich sweet cream. From the standpoint of palatability it is hard to beat this with anything the housewife can prepare.

Yearly there is something more needed than the ideal general purpose cow to enable some fellows to make a success with dairying and stock raising. In fact, there is more in the care than the breed, anyway. If a fellow detests milking he shouldn't monkey with dairy cows, but should raise the beef breeds—Herefords, Doddies or Shorthorns. If he likes dairying he would better go into the strictly dairy breeds and raise Jerseys, Guernseys, Ayrshires or Holsteins. Perhaps the very best general purpose cows do not belong properly to any breed, but are native stock of good frame, size and milking capacity that do well at the pail, yet raise bull calves that will make good beef steers. The only way that such a herd can be developed is by purchasing as many individuals of this type as one can get hold of and breeding them up with bulls from dams of known milking capacity.

WEAK HEARTS

are caused by Indigestion. If you eat a little too much, or if you are subject to attacks of indigestion, you have no doubt had shortness of breath, rapid heart beats, heartburn or palpitation of the heart.

Indigestion causes the stomach to expand—swell, and puff up against the heart. This crowds the heart and interferes with its action, and in the course of time the heart becomes diseased.

Kodol

digests what you eat, takes the strain off of the heart, and contributes nourishment, strength and health to every organ of the body. Cures Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Sour Stomach, Inflammation of the mucous membranes lining the Stomach and Digestive Tract, Nervous Dyspepsia and Catarrh of the Stomach.

After eating, my food would distress me by making my heart palpitate and I would become very weak. Finally I got a bottle of Kodol and it gave me immediate relief. After using a few bottles I am cured.
MRS. LORINO NICHOLS, Penn Yan, N. Y.

I had stomach trouble and was in a bad state as I had heart trouble with it. I took Kodol Dyspepsia Cure for about four months and it cured me.

At the meeting of the Democratic state committee in Harrisburg Wednesday, the supporters of Col. Guffey had everything their own way: George M. Dimeling of Clearfield, was re-elected state chairman and the action of the Denver convention in unseating the necessary de'egates to encompass Guffey's defeat was vigorously denounced.

JUDGE LANDIS' DECISION REVERSED.

By a unanimous decision of the Circuit Court of Appeals the fine, amounting to $29,240,000 assessed upon the Standard Oil Company of Indiana has been reversed and a new trial ordered. Thus ends this feature of the campaign against the trusts, but it is apparent from the decision of the court that the offending company is by no means absolved. It is more a question of details than of principles.

It is almost a year now since the original fine was assessed, and there is no doubt that it had a depressing effect upon the whole commercial world. By many persons it is alleged to have been the the first and principal cause of the depression in commerce and finance which set in last fall and which resulted in a way that need not be commented upon now. It may be conceded that this decision of Judge Landis was looked upon here and especially abroad as the most dramatic and confiscating in the history of litigation, and it tended to make people unduly cautious. It would be rash to say, however, that this case alone brought about the recent untoward conditions, which certainly were due to many causes.

The case now goes back to the trial court for adjudication according to the newly established principles. It seems likely that there will be a heavy fine imposed, but not in the wholesale manner of Judge Landis and not according to his views of every shipment being a distinct and separate offense punishable by $1000 fine. What the result of this new trial will be cannot be estimated in advance. It seems, however that offending companies are to be punished but not to be executed.

IT will be observed that our friends of the Democracy always carry the election about this time of the year. The party managers go upon the principle that it is better to claim everything in sight in order to avoid embarrassing specifications.

THE more you think of it the more you will wonder where the Democrats can see any real basis for anticipating a victory this year. The crops are good, business is picking up and there is still a great deal of common sense extant in the United States.

IT is not customary that a law or ruling is ever made retroactive, but it is not likely that the fifteen thousand employes of the United States Rubber Company, who received a 15 per cent increase in wages, effective July 1st., will object very strongly to that phase of the bulletin.

IN the presence of the tragedy with which the successful encampment at Gettysburg closed this year, the only comfort one can take in the face of the very distressing and saddening occurrence is that human agency had nothing whatever to do with the deaths of the National Guardsmen, since they occurred under conditions that are beyond human control.

Pretzels and Dust

The health officer of McKeesport has disallowed the peddling of pretzels about the streets, because the dust that will settle upon them is apt to be laden with disease germs. Commenting on this the McKeesport News says: "It is a step in the right direction,—but there still is a long way to go. Street displays of fruits and tables are far more dangerous to public health, not only because of the larger quantities consumed, but because as a rule they are moist and so retain much of the dust that falls upon them. This is particularly true of berries, from which the most careful washing cannot remove all the foreign matter Such foodstuffs should not be permitted to be displayed on the streets unless with glass."

BREAD AND DYSPEPSIA

Dr. Wiley's view that the bread of our housewives is productive of dyspepsia depends for it verification largely on the wives. There are wives and wives who are also different sorts of cooks. Accepting the pure food expert's assertion of wives who produce bread that defies the most active gastric juices it remains true that there are other wives whose bakery output defies competition. Also, there are different productions of the bread of commerce. Though the error to which the housewife may be prone, of heavy breads, is likely to be contrasted by the baker's disposition to turn out bread so light that you have to eat a cubic foot of it to satisfy an imperative appetite.

Nevertheless, we venture to doubt that the chief cause of dyspepsia is the bread of our wives, any more than the dyspepsia of our fathers was caused by the bread that mother used to make. In the former generation peculiar causes of indigestion were the saleratus biscuits and salt pork that formed a staple of the popular diet. In this generation we venture to assert that salads, pates and ices contribute their share. And in both we venture that the national tendency to put away large rations of meat with insufficient mastication has wrought more damage to digestion than the errors of past or present housewives in the baking of the staff of life.

Never Did Add

Our farmers have heard so much about the down-trodden farmer, until many of them have about concluded that they were worse off than any other class But there is one glorious thing about farming, one is not called from his vineyard, until he receives the summons to come up to the vineyard of the Lord. No farmer is ever thrown out of his job—fires, panics, storms, drouths may and will come; but the earth still yields her increase and always furnishes something to do for all of her agricultural children. And as long as time lasts there will be work for the farmer—and food for the sower. There are other remunerations besides dollars and cents. There are no great fortunes in farming—great fortunes can only by made where great opportunities are offered by an aggregation of money, men or many smaller influences. The farmer is too isolated for such combinations. We do not want such combinations, for here the many must serve the few, but for independence, for the glorious privilege of working out one's "own salvation with fear and trembling," and for stamping one's individuality upon his homestead and community there is nothing like the country.

Like Finding Money

C. M. Parrish the popular druggist is making an offer that is just like finding money for he is selling a regular 50 cent bottle of Dr. Howard's celebrated specific for the cure of constipation and dyspepsia at half-price. In addition to this large discount he agrees to return the money to any purchaser whom the specific does not cure.

It is quite unusual to be able to buy fifty cent pieces for a quarter, but that is what this offer really means, for it is only recently, through the solicitation of Druggist C. M. Parrish that this medicine could be bought for less than fifty cents, he urged the proprietors to allow him to sell it at this reduced price for a little while, agreeing to sell a certain amount. The result has justified his good judgment for the sale has been something remarkable.

Anyone who suffers with headache, dyspepsia, dizziness sour stomach, specks before the eyes, or any liver trouble, should take advantage of this opportunity, for Dr. Howard's specific will cure all these troubles. But if by any chance it should not C. M. Parrish will return your money.

The specific is very pleasant to take, coming in the form of small granules, and there are sixty doses in every package.

—The second meeting of the Centre-Clinton County Business Men's Picnic Association will be held at the Irvin House, Lock Haven Thursday July 30th at 4:30 p. m. A full turnout of the committee is desired.

Cherry History.

It is still asserted in schoolbooks that cherries were introduced to England by the "fruiterer" or greengrocer of Henry VIII.; also, that they were not common for a hundred years after that time. This is an error. Mr. Thomas Wright found the name in every one of the Anglo-Saxon vocabularies which he edited. So common were they and so highly esteemed that the time for gathering them became a recognized festival—"cherry fair" or "feast." And this grew into a proverbial expression for fleeting joys. Gower says the friars taught that "life is but a cherye fayre," and Hope "endureth but a throwe, right as it were a cherye feste." There is more than one record of the purchase of trees for the king's garden at Westminster centuries before Henry VIII. was born. But Pliny contradicted the fable, as if in prophetic mood. After telling that Lucullus first brought cherries to Rome (from Pontus, in 680 A. U. C.), he adds that in the course of 120 years they have spread widely, "even passing over sea to Britain."—Cornhill Magazine.

The First English Bookmaker.

Both the Derby and the Oaks owe their names to that Earl of Derby who kept a pack of staghounds near Epsom during the last quarter of the eighteenth century and resided at a hunting box called the Oaks. Fifty years later a spiteful description of the Oaks and its jockeys was recorded in the diary of Charles Greville. In the report of the first Derby run the names of five starters and of all the riders are missing and there is no betting quotation.

As the earliest known bookmaker, Vauxhall Clarke, was hanged, not for welshing, but for highway robbery, betting on the race course could not at that period have been a particularly profitable profession. Jockeys did not then possess their present princely salaries, but with a fee of a guinea were more richly rewarded than those of King James I., who were regaled by our British Solomon with long speeches, delivered half in Latin and half in Caledonian.—Westminster Gazette.

Financial Poetry.

An unusual album was presented to Willis Clark, brother of Lewis Gaylord Clark, a poet, on one occasion, with a request for "some rhymes."

Mr. Clark was at the house of a farmer, and the man's daughter had turned an old account book into an autograph album in which were inscribed the names of her various friends and relatives below appropriate sentiments.

Mr. Clark saw his opportunity, and after turning over the leaves for a moment or two he took a pen and wrote the following verse:

Where hope is scarce worth		2	6

Pepys on May Dew.

In Pepys' time May dew—that is, dew gathered from the grass on a May morning, and especially on the morning of May day—was highly prized for bleaching linen and improving the complexion. Pepys wrote in 1667: "My wife away down with Jane and W Hewer to Woolwich in order to a little air on to lie there tonight and so to gather May dew tomorrow morning, which Mrs. Turner hath taught her is the only thing in the world to wash her face with, and I am contented with it." Two years later he made this entry in his diary: "Troubled, about 3 in the morning, with my wife's calling her maid up and, rising herself, to go with her coach abroad to gather May dew, which she did, and I troubled for it for fear of any hurt going abroad so betimes happening to her, but I to sleep again. She came home about 6."

Very Sagacious.

A farmer had a very sagacious dog which he had trained to count his sheep as they passed through a particular opened gate, against which a pile of stones were placed for the dog's use As each sheep passed through the dog placed one of the stones aside. One day, much to the farmer's surprise, he found the dog trying to break a stone in half, and on himself counting the flock he found there had been an addition in the night of a lamb.

Dat's de value of an oath Foah dollars, sah." And then there was consternation in the courtroom.—St. Joseph News.

False Clue In Murder Mystery.

The search for the slayer of William Williams, the aged farm owner and suitor for the hand of Elizabeth Wall, aged thirteen years, whose body was found hanging to a tree near Marydel, Md., on Tuesday last, continues, but without success. A theory was advanced that Williams may have been attacked in Delaware and dragged across the state line into Maryland and while still alive hanged to the tree. It is probable that the attorney general of Delaware will be asked to help in the investigation.

Detective F. R. Dick, of Baltimore, is assisting in the investigation, but thus far no tangible clue has been found. Dick found Frank Wessel, a brother of a son-in-law of Williams. Wessel had been missing since the finding of the body, but he gave a good account of his movements showing that his absence was made necessary by business. The police are still working on the theories that Williams was either killed by some one opposed to his marriage with the little girl or that he was murdered by some one who was bent on robbery.

Seven Killed In Mine Explosion.

Seven dead and ten injured, several probably fatally, is the ghastly record of the Summit Branch Mining company's operation at Williamstown, near Pottsville, Pa., where a frightful gas explosion occurred, tearing down timbers by the force of its shock and setting parts of the workings on fire.

The dead are: John Reilly, Arthur Hawk, Charles Rickert, John Whittle, Anthony Freias, James Bowman and Michael Stakum.

The explosion occurred in No. 1 shaft of the Williamstown colliery, and is believed to have been caused by one of the dead men lifting the gause of his safety lamp just after an explosion of a shot which brought down a large body of coal. Superintendent Aumen at once directed the work of rescue, and when volunteers were called for almost every man at the colliery offered his services, which meant a hazardous trip into the burning mine, which was filled with deadly after-damp.

Insuring Against Bryan.

Fearful of a crash in stocks should William J. Bryan be elected president, Wall street firms have taken out two days, and $1,000,000 more is awaiting acceptance in the office of Bertschmann & Maloy, the New York agents of the great English firm. The insurance is at 10 per cent.

Some days ago a member of the insurance firm said a big manufacturer, who believed his business might be hurt by Bryan's election, asked if the Lloyds would insure him against that contingency. Cable messages brought the information that Lloyds would. But they wanted 20 per cent. That was too much, said the manufacturer, and 10 per cent was finally agreed on. Then the manufacturer placed $100,000. If Bryan wins he gets $90,000 back.

Tidings of the deal soon spread, and in one day Bertschmann & Maloy

Canoe Overturned; Two Drowned.

Peter Frankl, eighteen, and Marion Engle, seventeen, were drowned in the Schuylkill canal at Pottstown, Pa., and Elsie Fryer, aged sixteen years, and William Edwards, aged eighteen years, had a narrow escape when their canoe overturned. Marion Engle moved to one side of the canoe to dodge an overhanging branch of a tree and the canoe overturned. Frankl was an expert swimmer, but Miss Engle clutched him about the neck and he was powerless and sank with her. Edwards assisted Miss Fryer to the shore. Although Frankl and Miss Engle sank together, their bodies were found about twenty feet apart. All were residents of Pottstown.

The Prohibition Ticket.

For president, Eugene W. Chafin, of Chicago; for vice president, Aaron S. Watkins, of Ada, Ohio. This ticket was nominated by the Prohibitionists' national convention at Chicago, and both of the nominations were made unanimous. The full indorsement of the convention was not, however, given to Mr. Chafin until after three ballots had been taken.

The strongest competitor of Mr. Chafin was Rev. William B. Palmore, of St. Louis, who received 274 votes on the first ballot, and a comparatively small vote after it was evident that the nomination of Mr. Chafin could not be prevented.

Can't "Mister" Negroes In Court.

Judge Cochran, in the Wilmington (Del) municipal court, has made the oddest ruling on record in the state of Delaware. He ordered that witnesses should not refer to colored folks as "Mr.," "Mrs." or "Miss," and then, to enforce his decision, he fined Christopher Brooks, a colored man, $5 and costs for contempt of court because he forgot himself after being warned and again called Sarah Archer, a colored woman, "Mrs. Archer."

Negro Confessed Five Murders.

Frank Johnson, a negro, was hanged at the West Virginia penitentiary at Moundsville for the murder of Mrs. Beulah Martin, at Gypsy, W. Va., on March 3 last.

A sensational feature of Johnson's last day was a confession made to the chaplain of the prison, Rev. H. B. Sanford, in which he said he had committed five murders during his career.

Died Denouncing Priesthood.

Calling down maledictions on the Roman Catholic priesthood and shouting in Italian "Long live Italy. Long live the Protestants," Giuseppe Alia, who murdered Father Leo Heinrichs at the altar of St. Elizabeth's church, Denver, Colo., was carried to the death trap and paid the extreme penalty of his crime by hanging.

A TEMPERANCE WORKER.

Says Pe-ru-na is a Valuable Nerve and Blood Remedy.

MISS BESSIE FARRELL

MISS BESSIE FARRELL, 1011 Third Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., is President of the Young People's Christian Temperance Association. She writes:

"Peruna is certainly a valuable nerve and blood remedy, calculated to build up the broken-down health of worn-out women. I have found by personal experience that it acts as a wonderful restorer of lost strength, assisting the stomach to assimilate and digest the food, and building up worn-out tissues. In my work I have had occasion to recommend it freely, especially to women.

"I know of nothing which is better to build up the strength of a young mother, in fact all the ailments peculiar to women, so I am pleased to give it my hearty endorsement."

Dr. Hartman has prescribed Peruna for many thousand women, and he never fails to receive a multitude of letters like the above, thanking him for the wonderful benefits received.

Man-a-lin the Ideal Laxative.

Protecting the Forests.

Fire insurance for forests is a novelty. In the Pacific northwest the Washington Forest Fire association has elected officers and begun work with 3,000,000 acres under its charge. The plans include a system of patrol by rangers, resembling the work done by the United States forest service in warding off and putting out fires. Oregon and Idaho have similar organization for like work. In Idaho the state treasury pays out that part of the expense, which is borne by taxation. A western railroad company has large holdings in timber land and is carrying out successfully plans for guarding them against fire. At the other end of the continent Maine owners of forests have undertaken similar plans to protect the trees from their great adversary, fire, in other parts of the country similar need is felt for protecting the forests from fire, as is evidenced by the establishment of like organizations in different sections. It is urged that fires have destroyed more trees than lumbermen have felled. While timber was plentiful the waste went unnoticed. But now that wood famines seem imminent and every tree counts, owners of forest land are beginning to take precautionary measures so that the little wood remaining may last.

Blair County Races.

The Blair County Road Driver's association holds its annual big trotting and pacing races at the Altoona Driving park, July 29, 30, 31 and August 1. The sum of $7200 in purses has been hung up for the several events to be raced off, including the holding of one $1000 stake race each day of the meet with two other races. The offering of the $1000 stake events has attracted horsemen from all sections of the eastern middle and central states which the entries show. Some ninty horses having been entered in these events. The association is in the Ohio, Pennsylvania and West Virginia circuit, which will be featured by the holding of $1000 stake races at each meet during the season, giving horsemen the chance to race for one or more $1000 purses each week of the season. The programme of the meet will include events from the 2.12 pace to the 2.35 pace, from the 2.19 trot to the 2.30 trot and a big free-for-all. The biggest string of horses ever seen in Central Pennsylvania will be entered in the races.

Hello "Peggy" or rather Snow Shoe scribe don't forget to send some more of your interesting news in once a month to your friends.

Spring Mills.

On Wednesday last the family and relatives of James Kennelley tendered him quite an elaborate supper, the occasion being the anniversary of his birthday, the old veteran and hero of grim visaged war having reached his three score years and ten, all wished him many returns of the day.

J. C. Condo has greatly improved the appearance of his residence by removing the old palings and putting down a concrete coping, surmounted with a handsome low iron railing.

How about the usual Sunday school union picnic. I hear nothing about it? Its very near time a move was made in that direction if we are to have one.

G. C. King one of our enterprising and active business men, in addition to operating his saw mill just a few steps from it is erecting a building to operate one of the latest improved hydraulic cider press. The press will be run by a patent safety gasoline engine, and no power taken away from the saw mill to interfere with his lumber operations, consequently cider can be made at any time at short notice. The location of the press and accommodations afforded is a want long needed by our community. Mr. King will introduce all the modern improvements and conveniences in the building necessary for the business, and with his improved machinery will be able to make clear sparkling cider free from all pomace and other impurities. The approach to the mill will place the receptacle for carrying apples to the hopper on a level with the wagon box, so there will be little labor in unloading, and the cider will be hoisted on the wagon by the engine. Besides there is ample room to turn a team around when necessary without any fear of a collision or upset. As the apple crop promises to be a very large one, and Mr. King being so well known evidently will have all the cider business he can well manage.

Quite a number of our folks attended the Lutheran picnic at Centre Hall on Tuesday last, all report having a delightful time.

Bicycles are fast disappearing from the roads. What will the next craze be? Bicycles like roller skates had its day.

Judge from the oat fields the harvest will be a heavy one, the corn too gives great promises.

He's a Dandy.

Clearfield boasts a tramp of unusually genteel habits, asthe following incident proves. An early rising housewife living near the county bastile, was surprised to see a member of the genius tramp the other morning, as the gray dawn was glimmering in the east, emerge from the fountain which graces the park, which he had used as a "tub," scurry across the street to a piazza on which the porch chairs each wore a clean white towel, for the protection of dainty frocks, and hastily, but none the less thoroughly, put these articles to the original use for which towels are manufactured.

The observer was so surprised by the spectacle that she had to make haste to tell the owner of the towels the story of the aesthetic tramp.

Forcible Facts.

One-sixth of the deaths from disease are due to consumption. Ninety-eight per cent, of all those who have used Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for "weak lungs," have been perfectly and permanently cured. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery is not advertised to cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will do that. The "Discovery" does cure obstinate, lingering or "hang-on-coughs," and all those catarrhal conditions of throat and bronchial passages which if not properly treated end in consumption. Take the "Discovery" in time and if given a fair and faithful trial it will seldom disappoint.

Free. Dr. Pierce's great work, The People's Common Sense Medical Adviser is sent free on receipt of stamps to pay cost of mailing only. Send 21 one-cent stamps for paper covered book, or 31 stamps for a copy in cloth binding. Address Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.

Our Mailing List Corrected.

The mailing list of the Bellefonte, Republican has been corrected to July 28 1908 and all who paid their subscriptions prior to that date will find proper credit given by change of date on their lable.

We feel very grateful to the many subscribers who hove responded to our call, but there a good many who are back over year.

A Dispenser of Smiles.

Her mother said: "Oh, dear! Isn't that awful? What will people think?" but the people themselves seemed to think it about the prettiest incident they had met that day.

She was a very little girl, white frocked, pink ribboned, brown curled. With her mother she left the subway train at the Grand Central station. The usual confusion prevailed. Timid travelers grabbed suit cases and bundles and exclaimed, "Oh, do we change here?" Trainmen on the platform shouted out directions for local and express trains and the guards of that particular car adjured the passengers frequently and vehemently to "Step lively!" and to "Watch the step." Then all of a sudden there was a lull in the uproar. The little girl was leaving the car. She stopped at the door, looked back and waved her hand.

"Goodby, everybody," she said.

The words carried to the far end of the car. They made every one sit up. Two or three persons called out a responsive "Goodby," two or three said "Bless the child," and all smiled.—New York Press.

The Sea Serpent.

When fourteen miles off the coast of Brazil M. J. Nicoll, author of "Three Voyages of a Naturalist," observed a sea serpent which came within about fifty yards of the ship. "All that we could see was a dorsal fin about four feet long sticking up about two feet from the water. The fin was a brownish black color and much resembled a gigantic piece of ribbon seaweed. Below the water we could indirectly see a very large brownish black patch, but could not make out the shape of the creature. Every now and then the fin disappeared below the water. Suddenly an eel-like neck, about six feet long and of the thickness of a man's thigh, having a head shaped like that of a turtle, appeared in front of the fin lashing up the water with a curious wriggling movement. This creature was an example, I consider, of what has been so often reported, for want of a better name, as the 'great sea serpent.' I feel sure, however, that it was not a reptile that we saw, but a mammal."

Bought His Own Work.

To come across a bit of one's own work in print is an experience not ordinarily exasperating to an author, but a Washington writer on scientific matters was recently not very agreeably surprised by such a development.

It appears that the writer was collecting material for a monograph on electro magnetism when word came to him of a valuable paper on the subject not long before published in a Berlin journal devoted to science. Thinking that the paper would be of use to him in the work in hand, he had it translated. When the English version was laid before him, together with quite a bill for the translator's labor, what was the disgust of the writer to find that the article was nothing more or less than a German reproduction of an article of his own published the year before in an English journal. And he had paid twice as much for the translation as he had received for the original article!—Washington Star.

A Dream Superstition.

I heard what was to me at least a new piece of superstition the other day and when I think of the risks I've run all these years because I didn't know of it my blood runs cold. I met a woman from Virginia in market, and the talk falling on dreams I recalled a most blood curdling nightmare I had had the night before.

"I must tell you what I dreamed last night," I said.

"Let me ask first whether it's a pleasant or an unpleasant dream?" said the lady from Virginia.

"Decidedly unpleasant."

"Then for mercy's sake don't tell it!" said she. "Never tell a bad dream on Saturday, for we say in Virginia:

"Friday night's dream on Saturday told
Is sure to come true, no matter how old."

Australian Cadets.

All children in Australia are drilled but the elder boys are attached to the Australian military forces by means of the cadet corps. Almost every large school has its band of cadets, who wear neat khaki uniforms and are armed with light rifles, in the use of which they are frequently instructed. Every year those boys have shooting matches, and the scores prove that among the youngsters there are many who have already become skilled marksmen.—London Standard.

Giving Them Credit.

"You know," said the distinguished oriental who manifests much curiosity, "that the Chinese discovered the art of printing from type thousands of years ago?"

"Yes," replied the man who was being interviewed. "And incidentally I don't doubt that they were the original inventors of the interrogation point."—Washington Star.

Complimentary to Him.

"Really," said Cholly Sappey, "I cawn't understand Miss Rood at all. She actually called me a crank."

"The idea!" exclaimed Miss Cutting. "How flattering!"

"Flattering?"

"Yes; a crank, you know, is a man with one idea."—Catholic Standard and Times.

Delays Are Dangerous.

"This milk is sour, and I won't take it," declared the lady.

"That's your own fault, ma'am," retorted the dealer. "I offered it to you day before yesterday when it was fresh, and you wouldn't take it."—Cleveland Leader.

Italians in a Fracas

Three Italian brothers engaged in a quarrel at their home on Halfmoon hill Sunday evening and before the fracas was over one of them was badly wounded with a stiletto. One of the Italians is a married man with a family and it appears that the trouble started over one of the children and in some manner the other men took up the dispute and soon there was a weilding of the dangerous weapons that customarily used when trouble brews among this class of foreigners. The man of the house was unable to defend himself against his two brothers and received an ugly gash in his arm and another in the side. Officers were sent for and the two men who did the cutting were arrested and taken to jail.

Allison—Rothrock.

Oren J. Allison and Ida Rothrock, both of Howard, were married at the home of Mr Allison's brother and sister D. T. and Mary Allison Sunday evening by Dr. Wm Lamie of this place Mr. Allison conducts a meat market at Howard and they will make their residence at that place.

The Farmer's Wife

Is very careful about her churn. She scalds it thoroughly after using, and gives it a sun bath to sweeten it. She knows that if her churn is sour it will taint the butter that is made in it. The stomach is a churn. In the stomach and digestive and nutritive tracts are performed processes which are almost exactly like the churning of butter. Is it not apparent then that if this stomach-churn is foul it makes foul all which is put into it?

The evil of a foul stomach is not alone the bad taste in the mouth and the foul breath caused by it, but the corruption of the pure current of blood and the dissemination of disease throughout the body. Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery makes the sour and foul stomach sweet. It does for the stomach what the washing and sun bath do for the churn—absolutely removes every tainting or corrupting element. In this way it cures blotches, pimples, eruptions, scrofulous swellings, sores, or open eating ulcers and all humors or diseases arising from bad blood.

If you have bitter, nasty, foul taste in your mouth, coated tongue, foul breath, are weak and easily tired, feel depressed and despondent, have frequent headaches, dizzy attacks, gnawing or distress in stomach, constipated or irregular bowels, sour or bitter risings after eating and poor appetite, these symptoms, or any considerable number of them, indicate that you are suffering from biliousness, torpid or lazy liver with the usual accompanying indigestion, or dyspepsia and their attendant derangements.

The best agents known to medical science for the cure of the above symptoms and conditions, as attested by the writings of leading teachers and practitioners of all the several schools of medical practice, have been skillfully and harmoniously combined in Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. That this is absolutely true will be readily proven to your satisfaction if you will but mail a postal card request to Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for a free copy of his booklet of extracts from the standard medical authorities, giving the names of all the ingredients entering into his world-famed medicines and showing what the most eminent medical men of the age say of them.

SERVICES FOR THE DEAD

Military Services Held for the Soldiers at Gettysburg

WAS A GLOOMY CAMP

Col. Taylor Discovered that the New Leggings Attracted Lightning and Caused Much of the trouble.

METAL IN LEGGINGS WAS MELTED.

Gettysburg, July 24.—A pall of gloom hung over Camp Alexander Hayes today following the catastrophy which befell the camp late last night, when three guardsmen were instantly killed and nearly a hundred hurt, none of them dangerously, during the electrical storm which swept over the encampment.

To the new regulation leggings, worn for the first time by the guardsmen's officers of the Second Brigade, which suffered most from the storm, is especially attributed the fatal effect of the lightning. With two strips of flexible steel running together in the back of each legging and two in the front, the men found their legs encased in veritable death traps. Standing upon the rain soaked ground, which was charged with electricity, the three privates killed and those who were shocked found that the steel in their leggings acted as a conductor for the lightning.

In the case of the men who lost their lives the steel bands were melted and twisted, the hot metal having burned the flesh.

General Bowman this afternoon expressed himself as very much concerned about this phase of the question and promised that the matter would be thoroughly investigated. It is reported that all over the camp last night men standing on wet ground felt a sensation in their legs as though they were being attacked with needles. This is also ascribed to the steel ribs in the leggings.

When Colonel H. S. Taylor, of the Tenth Infantry, relized how the leggings were imperiling the lives of his men, he ordered them to remove the steel-braced coverings at once. Other regimental commanders pursued the same course, and their forethought in this respect is believed to have saved the lives of scores of guardsmen.

The military services for the dead were held during the morning. At half-past 9 o'clock the Tenth Regiment drew up in a hollow square and stood with bowed heads while Captain Temple conducted the brief service. Their regimental band played "Lead, Kindly Light," and "Nearer, My God, to Thee" and the regiment dispersed.

The services in the Sixteenth were of a similar nature, and were conducted by Dr. Frank M. Sibley, pastor of the North Presbyterian Church, of Pittsburg.

Uniontown, Pa., July 24.—Cyrus Milton Garver, the Company C man killed in the electrical storm at Gettysburg last night, was to have been married next Tuesday to Miss Ida Irene Chapman, daughter of Edwin D. Chapman of this place.

Every preparation had been made for the nuptials, Miss Chapman having all her wedding garments made.

The Cause of Many Sudden Deaths.

There is a disease prevailing in this country most dangerous because so deceptive. Many sudden deaths are caused by it—heart disease, pneumonia, heart failure or apoplexy are often the result of kidney disease. If kidney trouble is allowed to advance the kidney-poisoned blood will attack the vital organs, causing catarrh of the bladder, or the kidneys themselves break down and waste away cell by cell.

Bladder troubles almost always result from a derangement of the kidneys and a cure is obtained quickest by a proper treatment of the kidneys. If you are feeling badly you can make no mistake by taking Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It corrects inability to hold urine and scalding pain in passing it, and overcomes that unpleasant necessity of being compelled to go often through the day, and to get up many times during the night. The mild and the extraordinary effect of Swamp-Root is soon realized. It stands the highest for its wonderful cures of the most distressing cases.

Swamp-Root is pleasant to take and is sold by all druggists in fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles. You may have a sample bottle of this wonderful new discovery and a book that tells all about it, both sent free by mail. Address, Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Set Himself Afire.

Wedding guests to the number of a score came to the little home at 511 Greenwich street, Philadelphia. They were the friends of Nathan Presser. He was to have been married Sunday evening to handsome and wealthy Rose Schattenstein, of 639 Grant street, Allentown, and his friends had come in gala dress to wish him godspeed and to go with him to Allentown for the wedding.

But instead of a place of festival the laughing visitors came suddenly upon a house of sorrow. The bridegroom-to-be had poured oil over his clothes and set a match to them. A moment later he had been found, a whirling pillar of flame, in his bedroom, and conscious, but shrieking in hideous agony, at the Mt. Sinai hospital, a block away, the man had died.

He removed the tank from an oil stove, and after pouring the contents over his clothing, went into the yard, where he set himself on fire. When the members of his family found him he was burned from head to foot and unconscious. At the hospital he was able to tell the physicians he had sought death by fire.

Twice before, when on the point of marrying Miss Schattenstein, he lost the money he had saved for the occasion. Saturday night he said he was disheartened and feared he could not marry, because his money was all tied up in his business.

Hysterics Restore Sight.

James Cantillion, of Marionette, Wis., who was totally blind, regained his sight at Bellevue hospital, in New York city, during a fit of hysterics which followed the surgeon's announcement to him that his case was considered hopeless and that he probably would remain blind for the remainder of his life.

Cantillion, who is a professional base ball player, had to have his left eye removed as the result of an accident in Chicago several months ago. The sight of the other eye failed from sympathetic affection. He came to the Cornell University Medical college here for treatment and was preparing in Bellevue for an operation. Sunday the surgeons decided that an operation would be useless and so informed Cantillion, who thereupon became hysterical. Suddenly he cried out that he could see, and tests showed that the sight of the right eye had been almost completely restored. The specialists now hope to complete the cure.

Williams Resigns As Minority Leader

Congressman John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, resigned the minority leadership of the house of representatives to take effect Dec. 1 next. This announcement is made by Congressman H. D. Clayton, chairman of the Democratic caucus. In resigning thus early he is actuated, he says, by a desire to give the minority ample time to consider whom they want to succeed him, and also for the reason that if the next house is Democratic the new speaker whoever he may be, ought to have the experience which the position of floor leader would give him during the short session next winter.

Money Order Clerk Accused.

Patrick J. Messett, for many years the trusted money order clerk in the Scranton, Pa., postoffice, has been remanded in $5000 bail there to answer a charge of embezzling funds of the office. He was arrested on a specific charge of embezzling a money order for $142 given him by Postmaster Mathew McPherson, of Dickinson City but it is alleged that an examination of his accounts shows a shortage of at least $5000.

Drowned While Crabbing.

George S. Wolfe, of Philadelphia, is missing and is supposed to have fallen overboard and been drowned while on a crabbing trip in the Thoroughfare at Atlantic City, N. J. The rowboat which he had hired was found adrift, and in it was found the missing man's sack coat and letters which led to his identification. As he could not swim the assumption is that he leaned over to get a crab and lost his balance.

She Hated Garrick.

Mrs. Clive was eminent as an actress on the London stage before Garrick appeared, and as his blaze of excellence threw all others into comparative insignificance she never forgave him and took every opportunity of venting her spleen. She was coarse, rude and violent in her temper and spared nobody.

One night as Garrick was performing "King Lear" she stood behind the scenes to observe him and, in spite of the roughness of her nature, was so deeply affected that she sobbed one minute and abused him the next, and at length, overcome by his pathetic touches, she hurried from the place with the following extraordinary tribute to the universality of his powers: "Hang him! I believe he could act a gridiron."—T. P.'s Weekly.

A Surprise Coming.

A horse was standing along Chestnut street the other day anchored by an iron weight. The horse, not knowing what else to do to pass away the time, was industriously chewing the strap. A newsboy happened along, and after watching the animal for awhile he grinned a cluster of grins and turned to a man who was standing near.

"Don't say a word," he gleefully remarked. "Old Umpire here is going to have the surprise of his life in a few minutes."

"What is the matter with him?" asked the man, glancing first at the kid and then at the horse.

"Nothin' is the matter with him," was the happy rejoinder of the newsboy. "He may eat the strap all right, but when he gets down to that weight he will think he has struck a boardin' house."—Philadelphia Telegraph.

Caught the General.

One of the regular army officers tells a story of how the old stringent army regulations once went against General Scott. One wet afternoon that soldier was caught in the rain in Washington. He was in full uniform and was well known, so, no cab being near, he borrowed an umbrella. Arriving at his hotel, an underofficer approached him and calmly remarked:

"General, you will consider yourself under arrest for eight days for carrying an umbrella while in full uniform."

His Solicitude.

"Is it a fact that your mother-in-law threw herself out of the third story window and you did nothing to restrain her?"

"Excuse me, I went to the first story to catch her, but she had already passed."—Dia lo Rosa.

The Pigs of Brittany.

"Brittany is all right," the traveled man said cautiously, "but beware of the pigs there. The Breton pig is not fat and indolent like ours. He is as lean and fiery as a wolf and twice a wolf's size. All over Brittany you see him, swaggering up and down the white roads in search of roots, berries, frogs, anything—for he must forage for himself—his master never feeds him. Step out of his way, or he will snarl and leap at you.

"The Bretons are great drunkards. Sometimes they fall asleep beside the road. They awake with a sharp pain in the arm or leg, the pain of a hungry hog's teeth."—New Orleans Times-Democrat.

A Woman's Health

Is a heritage too sacred to be experimented with. For her peculiar and delicate ailments only medicines of known composition and which contain no alcohol, narcotics, or other harmful or habit-forming drugs should be employed. The one medicine which fulfills all these requirements is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription—a remedy with a record of over forty years of cures to recommend it; a remedy, the makers of which print its formula on every bottle-wrapper and attest its completeness and correctness under oath; a remedy devised and adapted to woman's delicate constitution by an educated physician—an experienced specialist in woman's diseases; a remedy, every ingredient of which has received the written endorsement of the most eminent medical writers of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar diseases; a remedy which has more bona-fide cures to its credit than any other sold by druggists for woman's special requirements. It is not given away in the form of "trial bottles" to be experimented with, but is sold at a fair price by all dealers in medicines.

Delicate, weak, nervous women should especially shun the use of alcoholic medicines which, from their stimulating and exhilerating effects may seem, for a time, to do good, but which from the inevitable effects of the alcohol in shrinking up the red corpuscles of the blood are sure to do great and lasting harm in the long run. Besides they beget a craving for stimulants which is most deplorable.

Only invigorating and nerve strengthening effects can follow the use of this famous medicine for women. It can not possibly do harm in any state or condition of the system. It has been carefully adapted to woman's needs by an experienced physician—a specialist in their diseases. It makes weak women strong and sick women well.

If a woman has bearing down, or dragging pains, low down in the abdomen, or pelvis, backache, frequent headaches, dizzy or fainting spells, is nervous and easily startled, has gnawing feeling in stomach, sees imaginary floating specks, or spots before her eyes, has melancholia, or "blues," or a weakening disagreeable drain from pelvic organs, she can make no mistake by resorting to the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It will invigorate and tone up the whole system and especially the pelvic organs.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Perscription is a scientific medicine, carefully devised by an experienced and skillful physician, and adapted to woman's delicate system. It is made of native American medicinal roots and is perfectly harmless in its effects in any condition of the female system.

As a powerful invigorating tonic, "Favorite Prescription" imparts strength to the whole system and to the organs distinctly feminine in particular. For over-worked, "worn-out," run-down," debilitated teachers, milliners, dressmakers, seamstresses, "shop-girls," house-keepers, nursing mothers, and feeble women generally, Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the greatest earthly boon, being unequaled as an appetizing cordial and restorative tonic.

As a soothing and strengthening nervine "Favorite Prescription" is unequaled and is invaluable in allaying and subduing nervous excitability, irritability, nervous exhaustion, nervous prostration, neuralgia, hysteria, spasms, St. Vitus's dance, and other distressing, nervous symptoms commonly attendant upon functional and organic disease of the uterus. It induces refreshing sleep and relieves mental anxiety and despondency.

No woman suffering from any of the above symptoms can afford to accept any secret nostrum or medicine of unknown composition, as a substitute for a medicine like Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription, which is OF KNOWN COMPOSITION and has a record of over forty years of cures and sells more largely to-day than ever before. Its makers withhold no secrets from their patients, believing open publicity to be the very best guaranty of merit.

Dr. Pierce invites all suffering women to consult him by letter free of charge. All letters of consultation are held as strictly private and sacredly confidential and all answers are returned in plain, sealed envelopes. Address: Dr. R. V. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets cure constipation. Constipation is the cause of many diseases. Cure the cause and you cure the disease. One "Pellet" is a gentle laxative, and two a mild cathartic. Druggists sell them, and nothing is "just as good." They are the original Little Liver Pills first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They are tiny sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

SOME FORESTRY STATISTICS.

Circular No. 140, issued by the forest service of the department of agriculture, contains an interesting summary of the progress of forestry in several European countries and makes a striking comparison between results obtained under a strict system of scientific forestry and those possible under a careless and slipshod method such as is at present generally followed in the United States. The report makes plain that in all the European countries where any serious attempt has been made at systematic forestry the yield per acre has increased materially in a period of years. The method of management calls for a sustained yield—that is, no more wood is cut than the forest produces. In Prussia the forest yield per acre was twenty cubic feet in 1885, twenty-four cubic feet in 1890, fifty-two cubic feet in 1895 and in 1905 sixty-five cubic feet. During this period the percentage of saw timber rose from 19 to 54 per cent, which shows that there was not only an increase in quantity, but a marked increase in quality. In Saxony under strict forest supervision the annual production of wood is ninety-three cubic feet per acre. In Switzerland systematic forestry has been practiced since 1680, the most profitable tracts yielding on an average a clear annual profit of $12 per acre. In marked contrast to the results above noted is the condition of forestry in the United States. Instead of curtailing the cut of lumber to make it correspond with the annual growth, we are today cutting three times as much timber as our forest areas are producing. We spent on our national forests last year 9.3 mills per acre, while the revenue from them was less than seven-eighths of a mill per acre. In this as well as in most European countries one of the powerful factors leading to an effective interest in the project of forestry has been the enormous losses sustained from floods as a direct result of stripping the timber from the watersheds of the more important streams. Not until recently has this feature been given due emphasis in this country, but it is at present a powerful incentive to a forestry reformation.

UNIFORM APPLE PACKING.

The Porter bill, which was framed the past winter by a New York legislator and will be presented for passage at the next session of congress, provides for a uniform grading of apples packed for domestic and foreign consumption. As things stand at present, there is a wide variation in the grading of apples in different localities and in different seasons in the same locality, with the result that little reliance can be placed on the label that a given barrel may bear. For some years past Canadian apple growers and shippers have benefited by a law requiring uniform grading of apple stocks, with the result that on the London markets, where much of the Canadian fruit is retailed, it brings 2 shillings a barrel more than New York pack because of a certainty that the grading is uniform. The law referred to may work some hardship on the careless or dishonest packer, but it will without question be a boon to those who are reliable and conscientious and be welcomed by commission men, who in a way are at present working at a great disadvantage.

TREATING FENCEPOSTS.

In view of the increasing cost of post timber it is well worth while for one who has a good many of them to set to treat the posts so as to increase their life and usefulness. This may be done in one of several ways. One of the best preservatives for this purpose is carbolineum, which is highly recommended by the forest service and is at present used extensively by a number of large telephone and telegraph construction companies. While it may be somewhat more effective and more expeditious to dip the butts of the posts into a receptacle containing the preservative, the same results can be obtained by giving the portion of the post to be set into the ground and six inches above two coats of the carbolineum, the first being allowed to soak in and dry before the second is applied. Carbolineum costs in the neighborhood of 75 cents a gallon. If the posts are dipped in hot tar or painted with it, much the same results will be secured. In the absence of either of these preservatives the application of two coats of common black roof paint will add materially to the life of the post.

LOCATING A HOME.

In the location and construction of a home it is well to remember that heat is vastly preferable from the standpoint of health to coolness, coupled with dampness, while dust, though bothersome, has more in its favor than mildew.

String beans may be planted as late as the 1st of August with good prospect that they will produce a succulent dish for the table before the first heavy frost comes.

While rice may be an excellent partial ration for growing chicks, it hardly contains enough gluten to supply materials for growing muscle and bone.

A few drops of oil of lavender put on a handkerchief and the same rubbed over one's face, neck and hands are said to ward off mosquitoes. If this preventive is as distasteful to the mosquitoes as it is to most people it ought to be a very effective repellent.

Where an icebox or cool cellar is not available it is said that water or other articles may be kept comparatively cool for a considerable length of time by wrapping the pail in which they are placed with several folds of a damp cloth and hanging in the shade where the wind can strike it.

The manure pile and the place for dumping the slops are the two chief places where house flies breed and congregate. On this account they should be located at some distance from the house. This may mean carrying the slops somewhat farther, but it will also mean fewer flies in the house.

The need of cultivation is especially apparent in hot spells after heavy rains, when a baking of the surface of the ground prevents a proper circulation of air through the soil and a proper movement of moisture from the subsoil. Provided the top two or three inches of soil are kept stirred and mellow, it serves as a sort of blanket which keeps the ground from overheating and becoming too crusty.

While the old hen method of raising chicks has its drawbacks, so has the brooder method. Old Biddy does not hatch the chickens out so fast as does the incubator nor lose so many as does the brooder at times. A friend who is much interested in the raising of thoroughbred poultry tells us that the other night a bloodthirsty rat or rats got into a brooder containing a hundred fine little chicks conveniently huddled together and killed all of them but one. Had the brooder been an old hen it is not likely that a tenth of this number would have perished.

On June 29 of this year there occurred the final allotment of the lands which have been held in trust by the government for the Osage Indian tribe. As a result of this division each member of the tribe received in the neighborhood of 800 acres of land, which are worth on the average about $40,000. This makes the Osage Indians the richest people on the face of the earth, the holdings of some being valued as high as $400,000. Besides the land which has just been distributed, the government has held in trust several millions of dollars in cash received from the sale of certain lands belonging to the nation.

Dame Nature evidently understood her job when she provided an abundance of pure water to slake thirst in man and beast. For this purpose it fills the bill as nothing else will. Animals drink water as a matter of course and ask for no frills. Man seems to vary nature's programme, but often to his own detriment. It is a matter of medical record that a man under the influence of liquor is twice as likely to freeze to death as a sober man, while in the matter of enduring extremes of heat the total abstainer has a tremendous advantage over the drinker of even moderate quantities of liquor. Seventy to eighty per cent of the heat prostrations in large cities during extreme hot spells are directly or indirectly the result of drinking intoxicants.

There is even greater difference in the milk capacity of cows in the same dairy herd than there is difference in capacity for work on the part of men living in the same neighborhood. Experiments conducted at the Georgia dairy station showed a milk yield from the best cow for the year of 7,938 pounds, worth $115.44, while the poorest individual in the herd gave but 2,788 pounds of milk, worth but $41.64. With a group of dairy cows at the Michigan station there was a variation in net return for the year from the poorest cow at $6.08 to the best at $98.05. In one herd of twelve cows tested by the Illinois experiment station it was found that the three best cows gave a larger return than all the others put together, and yet it cost no more to feed and care for them than it did the three poorest that were barely paying for their keep.

While it is advisable where possible for the dairyman to give his cows a thorough and scientific test as to their milk production, a very good idea of the worth of each animal as a milking machine may be got by having average samples of the milk of each cow tested for butter fat at the local creamery and keeping an approximate record of the milk yield of each cow from month to month during her period of lactation. Such findings would not be valuable as scientific data, but they would give the wide awake man a pretty accurate idea of those individuals in his herd that were really a source of profit to him and those that were barely paying for their board or kept at an actual loss. Two points should be taken into account in the test—quantity and quality of milk yield, coupled with the average period of lactation. If a cow doesn't make a showing on any of these points she is more than likely a deadhead.

Cresceus, the great trotter, whose record is 2:02¼, has been sold for $25,000 and will be taken to St. Petersburg, Russia, where the aristocracy is much interested in horse racing.

Millet makes a good feed for cows if cut before the heads get full. It yields well and is made at a season of the year when the weather is usually fine and it can be secured in good shape.

Sorrel may be accepted as pretty good evidence that the soil on which it grows is sour and needs sweetening with lime. In itself lime has no fertilizing elements, its mission being merely to establish a soil equilibrium which will be favorable to the production of growing crops.

It seems to be about a standoff between the city chap who runs his car at full speed past the farmer's team of skittish horses and the granger who has a pair of staid old plugs and will not give an inch of the road just because his horses are not afraid of an auto whatever its rate of speed. The two chaps should get together some day and talk the situation over on the basis of the courtesies and merits involved.

The hemp plant, which is raised almost exclusively in the Philippine Islands, is being experimented with in portions of Texas and with seeming success, giving hope that it may be raised on a commercial scale. Experiments in growing the plant have been made in India, Africa and South America, but without success. Hemp is secured from a variety of the banana palm, which seems to be much at home in the gulf coast country.

Better results will attend the growing of clover when it comes to be viewed by the average farmer as a primary rather than a secondary and makeshift crop. When sown with oats they rather than the clover are given chief consideration, while in seasons when it occupies the land entirely the first cutting for hay is given precedence over the second, which is sometimes saved for seed.

The common white market or navy bean has risen in value the past few years until it now brings a good price and gives a good return to the raiser. One of the advantages of bean culture, aside from the money return, is that the land which grows them gains rather than loses in fertility owing to the fact that, as it is not necessary to sow to seed until June 1, a multitude of weed seeds may be germinated and destroyed. More than this, beans will do well on rich or thin soil and give a crop under most any conditions except where the soil is too wet.

An emulsion for spraying stock to ward off flies that is recommended by one stockman in Minnesota is made by mixing thoroughly one part of kerosene with three parts of whale oil soap. This may be rubbed on the back legs with rag or hand and is said to repel the flies for a period of about two days, when it should be renewed. Several good fly repellents are advertised in the agricultural journals, and with each package of the article are directions for its proper use. With stock suffering from flies as they do and cows shrinking in their flow of milk most any method would seem to be worth trying to keep the pest in check.

One of the greatest drawbacks to the making of a sweet and first class butter product in the average creamery is an unsatisfactory condition of cream, the direct result of an insufficient cleansing and scalding of the milk and cream utensils. The washing of these in cold water and a rinsing of them out with that which is merely warm do not constitute a thorough washing, and butter made from cream handled in such receptacles can be at best but of a low grade. The milk pails and cans should be washed and scalded thoroughly each time after they are used and exposed during the day to the direct rays of the sun, which is a prime germ killer. Were every creamery patron to exercise proper precautions in this matter the question of making a fine butter product would be largely solved.

It is somewhat unfortunate that in so important a matter as the tuberculin treatment for cattle there should be as wide a variation in view as seems to exist among leading veterinarians and stockmen today. While some objection to this treatment for tuberculosis may be due to the practice of it by incompetents, the opposition of some authorities seems traceable in part to a constitutional tendency to be on the offside of a popular movement and in part to a desire to curry favor with a class of dairymen whose cattle are badly infected with the disease and who would suffer serious financial loss were the test to be applied to their herds rigorously. Some individuals of this latter class go to the extreme of stating that tuberculosis is brought on or superinduced by the tuberculin treatment instead of being held in check or eradicated by it. While the truth may not be all on one side, it is quite likely in large measure with the majority, who hold that the tuberculin treatment is a fairly accurate method of detecting the presence of bovine tuberculosis.

BUSINESS IS PICKING UP

CAR FAMINE FEARED.

Railroad Preparing for a Bumper Crop Which has Taken Away Rolling Stock From the East.

MANY PLANTS RUNNING FULL TIME

Pittsburg, July 22.—"Stove manufacturers all over the country will be running to their full capacity from now on" said Charles D. Priser, vice president of the Abram-Cox Stove Company. Wednesday at the semi-annual meeting of the managers of the Cox Company and those of the F. M. Borden and Brother. The meeting was held at the Bingham Hotel. Continuing, Mr. Priser said: "The business outlook for the fall is very good. We anticipate a larger output than we have had for years.

Pittsburg, July 22—The railroads at Pittsburg announce that they are confronted with a probable famine in box cars. Many box cars in good repair have recently been loaned to western roads for grain and the coming of a boom in business now will find the local roads short.

The repair shops are being started in full in order to turn out cars for business.

Pottstown, Pa., July 22—After an idleness of several months the big plate mill of the Lessig Iron Works resumed operations Monday night. This morning eight puddling furnaces were started. A large number of men were given work.

Orange, N. J. July 22—The plant of Thomas A. Edison which employes 2,000 men, has resumed operations on full time after running on a reduced time schedule for many months.

New York, July 22—The Ansonia clock factory in Brooklyn, which employs more than a thousand hands, was opened with a full force after a shutdown of several weeks.

A Heavy Blast.

A shocking exhibition of criminal negligence was exhibited by the workmen in setting off an uncovered blast in the rear of the post office this morning. Dozens of rocks, some weighing as much as two pounds, were thrown into Bishop street, where many children were at play and men and women were passing on foot and in carriages.

Many persons living in that section of the town have made a complaint and it seems strange that inexperienced men are allowed the free use of powder in the very heart of the town. Cannot these dangerous operations be regulated by borough ordinance?

The charge set off this morning was evidently much heavier than was necessary to do the work intended as the distance the pieces of rock were thrown would indicate, and persons living nearby state that it was uncovered, which made it doubly dangerous to those residing close by.

Turned Snake Color

Ella, the daughter of Michael Noviack of Big Mountain, who was bitten by a copperhdad snake while engaged in picking huckleberries about ten days ago, is lying in a precarious condition at the home of her parents and her case is one that is attracting widespread medical attention and notoriety. Dr. F. D. Raker was called at the time of the injury and applied the usual remedies. The girl seemed to improve but her left arm continued swelling, the poison having been diffused through the arm and shoulder. Recently the swelling affected her shoulder and across the left side of the breast, effecting the heart. Tuesday the girl's skin began to get brown in color and Wednesday morning she presented a most pitiable sight, the skin being of the same color as that of the copperhead snake.

Looking for Young Couple.

Miss Verna Hopkins, aged 16 years and William Mayes were two of young people who went to enjoy the picnic of the First Evangelical Lutheran Sunday school near Lock Haven last Thursday, and since that time nothing has been seen or heard of them. It is thought that they eloped from the picnic grounds and went to some other state to be married. Miss Hopkins had been making her homewith her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George Keller in Lock Haven and they are almost heartbroken over the girl's disappearance. Her father, William Hopkins of Wilmerding, is now in Lock Haven and will make an effort to locate the missing child.

BRIEF MENTION

Short Items of Local Interest Gathered By The Way Side

—W. H. Kochler, dentist, will be home from his vacation August first.

—A baby boy has arrived to add to the grace of the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mike Hazel at Roopsburg.

—The humidity for the past few days made us feel that another rain might have a cooling effect.

—Frequently a man's bitterest ememies are those for whom he has done the most; the same thing is true of corporations.

—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Donachy are rejoicing over the arrival of a son that made his appearance at their home Sunday morning.

—Housewives and gardeners take great pleasure in the fine new cabbage and the nice ripe tomatoes that can now be obtained from the gardens.

—The annual picnic of the Patrons of Husbandry at Grange park, Centre Hall, will be held this year during the week of September 12 to 18.

—The five-months-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Barner, who reside on Benona Hill, died Thursday evening after a serious illness of a few days.

—Col. W. Fred Reynolds received a car load of peach baskets on Monday which will be used in harvesting the large crop of peaches he will have this year.

—The influential citizen is the one who is his own master, who comes to independent conclusion, doing what he believes to be right from conscientious conviction.

—The houses on Lamb street owned by Wm. Musser have been painted during the past week adding much to their appearance. The work was done by Mr. Zimmerman and son of Nittany.

—Harvest pears are now ripe and it was our pleasure on Sunday to find a well laden tree in the yard of a generous neighbor much to the gratification of our appetite for fruit.

—New corn has made its appearance on the local markets, and harvest pears are about ready for use, thus two more very seasonable home grown articles have been added to the list of our daily food supply.

—The Huntingdon baseball team is after Wilbur Twitmire who is now playing at Goldberg. N. C., and it is quite probable that they will secure him. The Huntingdon team has signed several other good players.

—Duke Wian, the harness maker has torn down his old house on Logan street and now has a force of men at work excavting for the foundation. Work on the new home will be rushed so as to have it ready for occupancy before cold weather sets in.

—George Derr, the young man who had his fingers injured in a press at the Centre Democrat office about two weeks ago had one of the members amputated the other day. Failure to properly heal and fear of complications made it necessary to take off the injured finger.

—Jacob F. Walk, of Sandy Ridge, and Miss Lydia Weaver, of Fowler, were married at the United Brethren parsonage in Tyrone shortly before noon on Wednesday by the pastor, Rev. T. P. Orner. Mr. Walk is employed by the brick company at Sandy Ridge and they will reside there.

—The Lock Haven printers held a picnic at Agar's park on Wednesday afternoon, and while they had extended a general invitation to all printers to attend it was our regret that we could not get there to help them dispose of some of the choice viands which we believe they will have on hand.

—Saturday evening being unusually pleasant there was a large crowd of people on the streets and the moving picture shows enjoyed a large patronage. While some were out for shopping and some for pleasure a great majority seemed to have nothing more in view than to enjoy the walk afforded by pleasant evening.

—An unusual number of drunks were about Saturday afternoon and evening, but they were of the quiet and harmless variety and did not give any trouble to the officers. The writer saw several of them who when they had tanked up started for their homes using the full width of the sidewalk in their worm-fence gait.

—The members of Company B with their camp parsphernalia arrived in Bellefonte on a special train Friday evening about 9.30 o'clock. They broke camp in the morning. The Company B boys made the trip without any accident to mar their work or the pleasures of the trip as an outing and all were feeling well and happy when they returned.

—The remains of Annie Bettleyou, who committed suicide at Peru on Sunday, were taken to the home of her mother at Potters Mills Tuesday afternoon and the funeral took place Thursday.

—While working for S. B. Miller on the Armor farm near town Tuesday morning, Wm. Chaney of Bellwood, fell from the top of a threshing machine, cutting and bruising himself about the head quite severely. Fortunately no bones were broken and Mr. Chaney will soon be about again.

—At a meeting of the Snow Shoe borough school board Tuesday evening Prof. B. J. Bower, of Mill Hall, was elected principal of the Snow Shoe schools. Prof. Bower has been principal of the Mill Hall schools for several years and made a good record for himself. His salary was fixed at $90 per month.

—The thirty-sixth annual meeting of the Newton Hamilton Camp Meeting association will be held August 13—25, and an excellent program has been prepared. A number of improvements have been made during the summer and it is now a more pleasant place than ever to spend a few days during the heat of the summer season.

—At the Sunday school convention of the Pittsburg district of the African Methodist church held in Altoona last week Rev. C. P. Herrington of this place had an important part in the program and took an active part in the deliberation of the convention. Mrs. Herrington was a member and chairman of the committee on nominations.

—Allen Lutz and Clyde Hancock have been getting near to nature's heart on a farm over at Runville. Allen gave up the farmer's too strenuous life and came home, but his fellow worker seem to be stuck on the job or the girls at Runville and is still raking hay with the Maud Mullers of that pretty rural region.—Philipsburg Ledger.

—Edward I. Childs, aged 41 years a car repairman employed by the New York Central railroad company at Jersey Shore, died at his home in Dennison's hollow about a mile from that place Monday afternoon from the effects of the bite of a rattlesnake. He was bitten Sunday afternoon near the home of his father who resides near Cedar Run.

—Mary Lucas, a young daughter of Joseph Lucas, former chief burgess of Manor Heights, is mysteriously missing from home. She visited a gypsy camp near that place a few days ago and did not return home. The gypsies left soon after and the girl's father and several policemen are searching the mountains for the nomads, believing they kidnapped the girl.

—Leppo, the wild man who did the snake-eating stunt in the Metropolitan show which exhibited at McDonald on Saturday, injured his keeper so badly that he will die. Leppo had just finished a lunch on rattlesnakes when lightning struck the tent and the wild man became crazed and attacked John Dudley a colored keeper and badly lacerated him with his teeth.

—William Bridgens of Sunbury has memorized 2,890 passages of scripture and has written on small cards every verse thus memorized. At a large service recently he distributed the cards among the children and young people at the service. As the chapter and verse were called out by the person holding the card he quoted the verse quoted thereon without one error.

—The citizens of Baileyville and vicinity will hold their sixteenth annual picnic at the Baileyville driving park Saturday, August 8. The amusements will include a ball game between the P. R. R. team of Tyrone and Pine Grove team, horse races on the track, other races and music. President Edwin Earle Sparks, of State College; Gen. James A. Beaver and J. C. Meyer, Esq., of Bellefonte, will be the speakers.

—Lightning struck the Second ward school building in Huntingdon last Thursday afternoon and went through a couple rooms, tore out the grates, broke pictures, and littered the rooms with debris. Some paper on the back of a picture in an upper room was carried down the ventilator and deposited in the cellar and other queer pranks were performed.

—A band of gypsies passed through town Tuesday, but tarried only long enough to secure a few provisions and also offered to tell fortunes. The people are getting wise to the wiles of gypsy fortune tellers and the practice of their art does not pay as well as it did at one time. The band that passed through town Tuesday morning were evidently Greeks as they were inquiring for a Greek candy kitchen.

—James, the eleven year old son of Oscar Adams of Philipsburg, had a miraculous escape from death on Monday. In company with another boy he went for berries. They gathered such a nice lot in the forenoon that they were encouraged to return in the afternoon. Shortly after 12 o'clock as Adams was wondering around in the bushes he stepped into an old air shaft and fell to the bottom, a distance of about 50 feet. He was drawn out by means of a rope and when an examination was made by a physician it was found that no bones were broken, but the boy was badly bruised and also badly scared.

—It has been rumored that Bellefonte was to have another circus before long but the report cannot be verified.

—George Garman and Emanuel Joseph are now dispensing ice cream cones at the entrance of the Garman opera house.

—Mrs. George W. Vernes and Mrs. Frank Colley, of Williamsport, have made a trout fishing record that will be envied by many men. On Wednesday they went to Hoagland's run near that city and when they returned in the evening they had forty-eight trout. None of them were under eight inches and most of them were over ten inches in length.

—The Centre Reporter says: A. A. Allison, the plumber, and John I. Olewine, the hardware man, of Bellefonte, were storm stayed at Centre Hall Tuesday night. They were traveling in the latter's steamer, but concluded that it would be the part of wisdom to remain among friends rather than climb the slippery roads across Nittany Mountain.

—Dairy and Food Commissioner Foust has received from Dr. William Frear, chemist of this division reports indicating that milk served to four regimental messes at Gettysburg was "doctored" with boracic acid to preserve it. As soon as possible the evidence will be placed before a magistrate and the parties selling the milk prosecuted. Samples of the meats drinks and other foods were also taken at the camp.

—Joseph Jennings, aged about 70 years, who made his home with a relative at Gelston, died the other day as he predicted he would. Jennings was deaf and dumb and communicated to his relatives by writing on a slate. The other day he wrote that he would die the next morning at 8 o'clock, the lady who was caring for him thought nothing of the prediction until that time the next morning when his life went out like a spark and without a struggle.

—A number of men are at work on new State road at Antes Gap, near Jersey Shore, and the other day one of them had a very narrow escape from being bit by a rattlesnake. He had picked up a stone and had stooped to pick up another when he noticed the snake. The man was so badly startled that he was unable to move and one of his fellow workmen seeing his predicament rolled a large stone down the hillside and killed the snake. In so doing he crushed two of the man's fingers.

—Warrants have been served on nineteen merchants of DuBois who are charged with keeping open their places of business on Sunday. The actions were brought by E. S. Hoover, a carpenter who has acted as special policeman on numerous occasion. He claims that he circulated a paper among the confectioners asking them to remain closed on Sunday but the paper was not very generally signed. Last Sunday he made a round of the city and made small purchases from each of the stores that were open and the action followed.

—Charles M. Schwab, of the Bethlehem Steel company has just returned from Europe and predicts a period of prosperity such as the country has not known for several decades. Mr. Schwab says that many an industry was leveled and shorn of its power for months following the period when money became tight, but that the financial sky is now clear the merchants and manufacturers, who weathered the storm may expect growth and profits. He says the conditions in Europe will aid the business boom just beginning in the United States.

—At the annual convention of the State Firemen's association at Shamokin next October the project of a state firemen's home will be considered. It has been a topic for much discussion at the conventions held during the past several years, and the agitation at the ensuing gathering is expected to be greater than ever before, as the Harrisburg Firemen's Relief association has a movement on foot for the proposed institution to be located in the Capital City. It is suggested that the necessary funds for the structure be furnished by the various relief bodies in the state.

—A man from Julian, who had become intoxicated while in town Saturday afternoon was about to board the evening train to go to his home when he was spied by the conductor. That employe of the railroad company refused to allow the man to board the passenger train despite the plea of his friends that they would take care of him until they reached their destination. The conductor called an officer and the drunk man was taken off the train and placed in the cooler where he was kept until he became sober and a fit man to go home to his family.

—Conductor Halligan of the Bald Eagle valley road is having his troubles with drunken men. Previous to putting the man off the train here he had trouble with an intoxicated man at Howard Saturday evening. A young man at that place who was very much intoxicated attempted to get on the train to come to Bellefonte and the conductor was trying to keep him off. In the tussle that ensued the drunken man caught the conductor by the trouser leg and pulled so hard that the garment parted above the knee, and not until the leg of the pantaloons was nearly torn off did the intoxicated man letgo. The conductor had to ride in the baggage car until some repairs could be made to his uniform.

—Our good friend Dr. A. W. Hafer celebrated Wednesday his 63rd birthday. He is looking as bright and active as he did twenty-five years ago. We wish him many happy returns of the day.

—We are sorry to note that G. Ross Parker the very accomodating conductor on the Bellefonte Central Railroad, is seriously ill at his home on South Thomas street. We hope for his speedy recovery.

—Word has been received here of the marriage of Miss Lillian Rearick, daughter of L. C. Rearick, to Kenneth Snodgrass, of Newport, Ohio. Only a note of the wedding was received by a relative of Miss Rearick and none of the particulars of the event could be learned, Miss Rearick had been visiting there for a month and while they had been intimate friends the wedding came as a surprise to many. Mr. Snodgrass is well known in Bellefonte, having been a frequent visitor in town.

—After wandering in the mountains for eleven days the horse belonging to Noah Brungart, of Rebersburg, was found the other day on a high rocky peak, about seven miles east of Livonia. The horse broke loose while Mr. Brungart was huckleberrying, and no trace could be found of it until it was discovered in this place where no one thought a horse would venture. It is a question whether or not the animal had any water during its wanderings and when found was standing quietly. He is now carefully nursing it back to usefulness.

—A fast and exciting game of ball was played at the Normal park, Lock Haven Wednesday afternoon between Orvis, the leaders in the Centre—Clinton league, and Lock Haven. From start to finish the contest was replete with sensational fielding, daring base running and clever work by the opposing pitchers. Peck pitched for Lock Haven and Young for the Mountaineers, and both did splendid work, especially when there were men on the bases. Orvis scored its only run in the third inning, and Lock Haven scored in the eight, and not until the eleventh did Lock Haven make the winning run.

—When Company B began to make preparation to go to Gettysburg a Bellefonte young man who did not belong to the company thought it would be a nice outing to go with the boys. He went to the camp last Saturday, but having left a dear friend in Bellefonte he soon became homesick and they they tell us that he shed enough tears down there to put out the fire which threatened the camp. All efforts to get him to remain there were unavailable and he started for home, arriving in Bellefonte on the evening train. It is said he made a bee line for the home of his girl and so happy was their meeting that he did not get away until the next morning. Now Bert you will have to muster up enough courage to stay away from her longer than that.

—Attention is called by an exchange to a very reprehensible habit, which is also noticeable in this place, and should be met with its just deserts. It says: There is a certain class of teamsters that allow their horses to peel shade trees along the prominent thoroughfares of the town, or allow them to stand where the trees can easily be reached. This is the height of carelessness and indifference on the part of drivers. In traveling over the town one can discover dozens of fine shade trees entirely destroyed through such carelessness. Let teamsters of all kinds instruct their drivers to use reasonable precaution to help preserve the property of the town.

—While there is no immediate danger of the coal supply in this state giving out there is evidence that gasoline will play an important part in the future motive and mechanical power. One day last week we observed F. R. Bussler, the electrician hauling an electric light pole with his automobile. The long pole had been placed on a small cart used by the men who raise the poles. This cart was attached to Mr. Bussler's auto and was conveyed to where the men were going to use it in an easy manner and in a short time. Saturday a new gasoline traction engine and separator passed this office on its way to begin threshing out the season's crops. The gasoline engines are much preferred by the farmers for threshing purposes as there is no danger from flying sparks as was the case with the engines fired with coal, and the gasoline engines are much more convenient.

—In connection with a Bellefonte wedding last week two young men planned to have some fun at the expense of the bride and groom. They walked several miles and secured a buggy in which they intended to bring the bridal couple to the passenger station, the buggy to be pulled by the young men. After the wedding and reception they secured the groom, but the bride escaped and ran away, but the thought of their being separated brought grief to her and she began to shed crocodidle tears over the fate of her newly acquired husband. Her wailing had the desired effect and the young men were pursuaded to give up the joke of hauling the couple to the station. This was where the joke turned for the boys had to take the buggy to the place where they borrowed it and by the time they had finished their task they were wringing wet with perspiration. This was an instance where the bride and groom were not made to pass through any humiliation and the joke was upon the proper persons. Ask Dan and Newt about it.

The C. and C. League.

The contest for the championship of the Centre-Clinton Base Ball League is becoming more exciting every day. Saturday's scores were as follows:

Howard 4, Mill Hall 3, first game.
Mill Hall 3, Howard 1, second game.
Woolrich 2, Orvis 1, first game.
Orvis 2, Woolrich 1, second game.
Snow Shoe 3, Beech Creek 0.

Without any question of doubt Saturday was the greatest day for base ball the Centre-Clinton league has yet seen. There were five games pulled off and all were good, hard fought contests. One can get an idea of the kind of base ball that was put up when it is stated that only 20 runs were scored by ten teams in five games and forty nine innings of play. There were two double headers one at Howard, with Mill Hall, and the other at Orvis, with Woolrich. The first game at Howard required 11 innings, while both of the Orvis battles went for 10 sessions. The work of the Woolpickers was probably the greatest surprise of the day. The tailenders showed a great reversal of form, and nosed out ahead in the tenth inning of the first game by the score of 2 to 1 They lost the second by the same score, but even at that the Mountaineers had no license to win. John Rich pitched phenominal ball in both games and certainly can be classed among the best twirlers in the league. The Mountaineers still retain first place, but dropped 22 points in the split even deal. However, Snow Shoe is coming on at a fast pace and the Barons are sparing no effort to get to the top. With several new faces on the team Saturday they shut out Beech Creek and incidentally pushed the Roses out of second place. Howard and Mill Hall divided honors in two pretty games, and the Millionaires are now rubbing the Red Roses, beets.

The contests at Snow Shoe last Thursday, we understand, were championship games. In this event Howard and Mill Hall are each credited with a victory over Beech Creek and Woolrich, respectively. This puts the Millionaires just three points back of the Roses for third place and makes the fight centre between Orvis and Snow Shoe for first place, Howard and Beech Creek for second, while the Ponies and Woolpickers are chasing each other in and out of the cellar with honors nearly even.

Everything in the C. C. league is working smoothly, interest is at top notch and the clubs are all playing an article of ball that is seldom surpassed, even by the big league teams.

STANDING OF THE CLUBS.

	Won	Lost	P. C.

Sherman May Decline.

There is a good deal of talk about the possibility that James Schoolcraft Sherman may be forced on account of ill health to retire from second place on the Republican ticket. Thus far nothing is known publicly of any detailed consideration by political leaders of the steps that would be necessary in such an event. It is known, however, that many of them have quietly discussed the situation which would arise, and that embarassing aspects have presented themselves.

In the event of Mr. Sherman declining the nomination, the national committee would fill the vacancy. The difficulty of this task is such that it can be said Mr. Sherman will not receive the consent of party associates unless there is extreme necessity that he do so; in short, unless his health becomes such that to remain on the ticket would seriously endanger his life.
